MR. K CANCELS TOUR AFTER 'SOUR' PRESS

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev today abruptly cancelled a scheduled tour next month of four Scandinavian nations. A formal Soviet note said the surprise decision was due to a bitter press campaign against the visit and threats of anti-Soviet demonstrations.

It's Official: Hot! Hot! And Hotter!

It will be a scorcher for at least several more days, the weatherman predicted today.

A forest closure in Vancouver Forest District, which includes Vancouver Island, also is looming.

New Party To Start In Nfld.?

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Premier Smallwood goes before the legislature today to ask support of a resolution condemning a federal government bill on special Newfoundland grants.

If he doesn't get the House's full support, the jaunty premier said "then obviously I will have to adopt another course of action."

That might mean he would call a general election, although his governing 31-man Liberal party's term doesn't expire until 1962.

The House faces another situation, a statement by two members of the four-man Conservative opposition explaining why they resigned from the provincial party. A. M. Duffy and James D. Higgins, both members of St. John's ridings, announced Saturday they were quitting the party but retaining their seat in the House.

They didn't say why, preferring to wait until the legislature sits.

One report today said Higgins and Duffy will be the first two elected members of a new provincial political party.

The new party would be known as "The Newfoundland Party," it was stated.

Freak Mishap Kills City Skindiver

A Victoria skindiver and stock-car driver was killed in a freak accident at Sidney Sunday when he was knocked into Shoal Harbor by a shock from an electric cable running along the wharf.

Dead as a result of doing a good deed is Dick Willoughby, 27, of 1837 Crescent.

According to Sidney RCMP, Willoughby and some friends were planning to go skindiving Sunday morning. They prepared a boat at Shoal Harbor and were about to leave when Tony Johnson, who owns a houseboat tied up to the wharf, found he had lost a funnel used for feeding gasoline into his vessel and began searching for it.

Somebody spotted it under the water and Willoughby volunteered to dive to get it. He was wearing normal skindiving equipment, including flippers and mask.

GOT FUNNEL

He dived down, retrieved the funnel and returned it to the wharf. As he was climbing back on to the dock his hand touched the galvanized cover of a 110-volt electrical cable feeding electricity to the wharf houseboats.

Police say the three-strand conduit, hooked up to telephone wires, apparently short-circuited, resulting in an electrical shock which forced Willoughby back into the harbor.

As he tumbled back, Willoughby's wife, Ruth, and a friend, William Sim, 2644 Cedar Hill Road, grabbed a rowboat and rowed out to him. He was lying face down in the water, motionless. The two dragged him into the boat and he was pulled back on to the wharf, where they began artificial respiration.

NO RESPONSE

He did not respond and Sidney volunteer fire department similarly failed to revive him. He was taken to Resthaven Hospital, where Dr. C. H. Hemmings cut open his chest to massage the heart, again without any response.

Deputy coroner Dr. J. H. Moore was arranging an inquest, to be held probably at McCall's at 10 a.m. Tuesday. Funeral service has been tentatively scheduled for 1.15 p.m. Thursday at McCall's.

DICK WILLOUGHBY
... dies doing good deed

The mishap happened near the premises of Shoal Harbor Marine Co., managed by brothers Murray and Ken Stockall.

THREW SWITCH

Ken Stockall said today it was his brother who threw the switch to turn off the electricity after Willoughby was thrown back into the water by the force of the shock.

Ken Stockall said dampness seeping between the cable and the galvanized steel covering may have caused the short-circuit.

Police were unable to decide whether Willoughby died by electrocution or drowning.

A former car painter at Empress Motors, Willoughby was well known in stock-car racing circles.

Saturday at Western Speedway, Langford, he won the opening heat and took second place in the main event.

He was involved in a multiple crash in the third lap of the main race when some 11 cars piled into a fence, but he escaped injury.

Flying Directly To Edmonton, Philip Carries On

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP)—The Queen today was forced to cancel her part of the Royal tour of Canada's northland. Prince Philip will carry on in her stead.

While reported feeling better, she still has not fully recovered from the stomach upset that Sunday compelled her to spend the day resting in Whitehorse while her husband fulfilled her scheduled engagements in Dawson and in Mayo.

She will fly directly to Edmonton.

The announcement by press secretary Esmond Butler came at 10 a.m. YST (noon PDT) just before Prince Philip took off for Yellowknife in the four-engined Viscount aircraft that brought the Royal couple from British Columbia.

There was no indication immediately that any part of the heavy program scheduled in Edmonton Tuesday would be cancelled or curtailed.

WEARINESS

The stomach upset has been attributed officially to the Queen's general weariness and the hot weather.

Mr. Butler told the 50-odd newspapermen and photographers crowded into the airport press room:

"The Queen is better but has not fully recovered."

"In view of the heavy day the doctor has advised a direct flight to Edmonton."

"It is planned for the Queen to leave at 3.30 p.m. And she will arrive in Edmonton shortly after the Duke of Edinburgh who will be carrying out the day's program as arranged."

TO VISIT MINES

The Prince is due in Edmonton, 1,000 miles southeast of Whitehorse, at 9 p.m. MST after visits to the gold-mining centre of Yellowknife and the uranium mining town of Uranium City in northwestern Saskatchewan.

No reporters or photographers were with Prince Philip. Members of the press party that has accompanied the Royal couple across the country remained in Whitehorse. They will fly to Edmonton tonight.

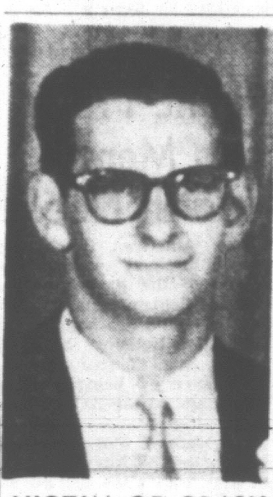

The Queen did not appear outside the RCAF guest house at the airport, the Royal couple's weekend home, this morning.

Mr. Butler's press conference was called for 9.15 a.m. At 9.50 a.m., when the Queen was scheduled to leave for her plane, it became clear that an important announcement would be forthcoming.

CONFERENCE

It was learned that Mr. Butler was conferring with the Queen's doctor, Surgeon-Captain D. D. Steele-Perkins.

Prince Philip went directly to the royal aircraft parked on the tarmac a mile across the field from the press room in the airport library. Mr. Butler met the newspapermen and made his announcement. (Continued on Page 22)

West Takes Lead At Geneva Talks

GENEVA (UPI)—U.S. Secretary of State Christian Herter proposed today that the Geneva deadlock over Berlin be broken by converting the present Big Four conference into a permanent commission on Germany with East and West German advisers.

Herter said such a body would have no time limit on its activities—unlike the all-German committee proposed by the Russians which would have to complete German reunification within 18 months.

The U.S. Secretary of State told the Big Four conference that setting up a permanent commission would be a "sensible and businesslike way" of breaking the East-West deadlock here.

Herter reminded the Soviets that the Big Four still remain responsible for reunifying Germany and that the West is determined to end the country's East-West division.

Russia's Andrei Gromyko rejected the Western proposal quickly in a preliminary reply that indicated he would turn it down outright later.

Herter spoke for the West as a whole when he delivered the proposal to a plenary session of the conference.

Shortly before, the U.S. Secretary had put the plan privately before Gromyko during a Big Four lunch meeting in the villa of British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

It was the first move by the West during the resumed Geneva talks to swing over to the offensive and seize the initiative from the Russians.

50 Killed in Uprising Sparked by Iraq Reds

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—Two Cairo newspapers reported today that a Communist uprising in Iraq against the government of Premier Abdel Karim Kassem in the oil city of Kirkuk was still raging and that the Communists were hanging a "large number" of Iraq officials there.

The death toll was estimated at between 50 and 100 persons. A clandestine radio calling itself the Voice of Free Iraq also reported today the fighting had spread to the city of Anah across the top of Iraq from Kirkuk and that Communists there had made "another attempt to capture the city."

FAMILY OF 8 SURVIVES DESERT ORDEAL

Spoonful of Water in Blazing Sun

MOAB, Utah (AP)—Eight parched people and one pint of water, a spoonful at a time ... a burning sun with only a disabled car for shade ... a little salmon-egg fish bait for food ... and, finally, a thirsty child's question:

"Mommy, what does it feel like to die?"

That was Diane Scott, 9, trying to sleep after almost two days of hardship.

The mother, 35-year-old Laura Scott, answered:

"It would be like going to sleep. You'd just go unconscious and gradually die."

"Will I get water in heaven?"

"Yes, honey, all you want."

Diane didn't die. Neither did Mrs. Scott, her husband Virgil, 37, or their five other children, ages 4 to 12. A search plane spotted them Sunday, when their car had stranded them for two days in the remote Country of Standing Rocks.

They drove into the rugged, treeless country Friday morning to see the breathtaking view from Dead Horse Point, a bluff that overlooks the Colorado River gorge about 35 miles southeast of Moab, the nearest community.

They took some wrong turns and got lost on Shafer Trail, a boulder-crowned pair of ruts suitable only for trucks or jeeps. Scott said the car's radiator burst. He drove on, thinking they were pointed toward Moab, by now more than 40 miles to the northeast. Then the crankcase oil pan ruptured and the car quit.

"We survived by keeping cool under the dirt," Scott said after their rescue; "drinking water—about a pint from the radiator, one spoonful every 2½ hours. All we had to eat was some salmon eggs, and we tried to eat cactus but our mouths were so dry we couldn't swallow it."

Scott explained that the family buried themselves in sand up to their necks, to avoid the burning rays of the sun. Relatives in Moab reported the Scotts missing when they didn't return Friday.

Two flyers, searching for the Scotts, saw the car near an SOS sign made of rocks. They radioed Moab, then landed a few miles away to take water to the family. A pickup truck reached them later and drove them to a spot where two other planes landed. The planes flew them here.

BREVARD, N.C.—"What's stuffed in your instrument?" a Transylvania music camp instructor asked a student of the base horn at a recent practice session.

"Nothing," the boy replied.

"I've been playing it all year and it's always sounded like this."

The teacher insisted the horn be washed out and, shortly thereafter, the red-faced boy returned holding a pair of girl's pants.

Both agreed the horn sounds better, but no explanations were offered.

GOVERNMENT SUPPORT FOR B.C. ECONOMY

The provincial government will spend "additional millions" in contracts to protect the economy if the strike of 27,000 coastal woodworkers is prolonged, Premier Bennett said Saturday.

The government would not step in to halt the strike, "because we are neutral."

The premier did not say how much the government must spend to keep the economy buoyant or what projects would be undertaken.

Crowd Panics, Boy Dies

STOUFFVILLE, Ont. (CP)—An excited crowd anxious to help save the life of a boy after he was pulled from a nearby lake Sunday pushed away a man trying to breathe life into the boy and hampered the efforts of a young lifeguard.

While the crowd milled and argued over the best method of artificial respiration, David Laur, 8, of Toronto, died on the shore of Shadow Lake near this village 14 miles north of Toronto.

Frank Samon, Jr., of Toronto, who tried breathing into David's mouth to revive him, said "it was an awful mess. I started to use the mouth-to-mouth method and the kid seemed to come around a bit."

"Then 15 or 20 people started pushing me away. They were pulling the boy's arms and legs and everything," Emmett Shundoff of Toronto, 15-year-old lifeguard at the privately-owned Shadow Lake Park, said it was "like a backyard squabble with everybody pulling at the boy and arguing about the best method to use."

CBC Blows Up As Session's Biggest Storm

By GRAHAM TROTTER

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament has closed its doors on another lengthy session after a final-day round of political warfare on national broadcasting policies, the most explosive issue of its six controversy-studded months.

The 127th and last sitting day produced two developments of future significance to all Canadians.

The biggest prospective debate of the January 15-July 18 session — on Prime Minister Diefenbaker's proposed Bill of Rights — failed to materialize. But Mr. Diefenbaker told the House Saturday he intends to go ahead with it early in the next session — likely to start in January — and submit it to searching scrutiny by a joint committee of the Commons and Senate.

And Revenue Minister Nowlan, who reports to Parliament for the CBC, signalled the end of the seven-year-old policy of limiting Canadian cities to one television station. He announced that as of September 15 the government will start receiving bids for licences to operate second outlets.

The Commons session hardly ever seemed free of major hassles. And among these, broadcasting matters were before the session from beginning to end.

The government was being pressed to intercede in the Montreal CBC producers strike as the session opened and at the windup was being damned by the Opposition for alleged interference with the publicly-owned corporation, supposed to be answerable only to Parliament itself.

Bitter Issues

If it wasn't broadcasting it was the high level of winter unemployment, the government's abrupt cancellation of the Arrow jet, the roles of government whip John Pallett and Transport Minister Hees in a tangled land expropriation case, the surprise resignation of RCMP Commissioner L. H. Nicholson over the government's refusal to send police reinforcements into Newfoundland's Woodworkers' strike, a tax-increasing budget, and so on.

The turmoil inside the Commons was often compounded by unusually free-wheeling debate in the House's committees. This was notable of the industrial relations committee where the government was roasted for boosting by 30 per cent employees-employer contributions to the depleted unemployment insurance fund, and of the broadcasting committee where both the CBC and the government had rough going.

Virtually all of the Liberal load was carried by remnants of the party's last cabinet — Leader Lester B. Pearson, Paul Martin, Lionel Chevrier and J. W. Pickersgill. In fact, they toiled so much they were dubbed "the four horsemen". The Liberals greeted Mr. Diefenbaker with not infrequent shouts of "dictator." Realizing the prime minister capitalized on his defence of the integrity of Parliament, they also seized every opportunity to throw his election campaign words on this back at him.

The emphasis in the government's legislative program appeared to be more on administration, instead of innovation, and the government came under increasing fire over the way it is carrying out policies.

The Legislature

Bills were enacted to set up a National Energy Board to regulate the oil and gas and pipeline industries; inaugurate a crop insurance plan; insert in the Criminal Code a definition of obscenity, aimed at ridding newsstands of trashy literature; continue the federal-provincial tax-sharing arrangements in 1959-60 on the same basis as last year; alleviate the effects of last fall's freight increase with a $20,000,000 subsidy.

In debate and pronouncements on defence, there was growing emphasis on production-sharing arrangements with the U.S. and heightened criticism that Canada was being tied too closely to American

GEORGE NOWLAN
... he had rough time

coat-tails in continental defence.

Finance Minister Fleming's budget set out to raise $352,000,000 a year in extra revenues through higher taxes on personal and corporation incomes, commodity sales and, in particular, cigars, cigarettes and liquor. It also brought a forecast for a reduced federal deficit of $393,000,000.

NEW POLICIES TOP FINAL MARATHON SESSION

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament has ended its 1959 session with a few newly announced government policies and some unfinished business left behind in the closing rush.

A non-stop push by the Commons Saturday ended shortly before midnight, and weary MPs and senators stayed on until prorogation ceremonies wrote a formal finish at 12:30 a.m. Sunday, first Sunday session since 1919.

The marathon 12½-hour sitting heard these developments: Prime Minister Diefenbaker said nuclear attack would preclude the calling of Parliament to declare war and the wide powers of the War Measures Act would be used to move into state of emergency.

Mr. Diefenbaker was named by the Liberals as the man believed in some quarters to have interfered with the publicly-owned CBC in order to have a political commentary cancelled — a suggestion that Revenue Minister Nowlan labelled "utter nonsense".

Defence Minister Pearkes will assume responsibility for Canada's new Civil Defence setup and a federal-provincial conference on civil defence will be held in October.

Trade Minister Churchill said that effective August 1 the Canadian wheat board has been instructed to attempt a system of boxcar distribution that would enable Prairie grain growers to deliver to elevators of their choice, decision will be taken in the next few weeks.

The Throne Speech read by Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin, of the Supreme Court, deputy governor-general, expressed Canadian hopes that substantial progress toward international accord will be made at any summit meeting. But it was essential to remain strong through the North Atlantic Alliance.

Undermining the CBC

A HASTY AND PARTISAN inquiry by the House of Commons broadcasting committee has left the affairs of the Canadian Broadcasting Commission in an unsatisfactory state.

The committee received no absolute, direct proof that the CBC had been influenced by political pressure but it seems quite clear that something of the sort occurred to force the cancellation of the Ottawa commentary program. It has been restored to the air, after the CBC management beat a quick retreat, but the morale of the whole broadcasting system, and the public's confidence in it, have been gravely undermined.

The parliamentary committee's hearings were concerned mainly with the evidence of three distinguished CBC officials who, with more than thirty other officials, resigned in protest against political interference.

Mr. Frank Peers said he had detected such interference from conversations and correspondence within the CBC and believed that this conclusion, though not specifically proved, would appeal to any reasonable man.

His colleagues, Mr. H. G. Walker and Mr. Charles Jennings, went further. They said they had been told by Mr. E. L. Bushnell, the acting president and manager of the CBC, that "heads would roll" unless the offending program was canceled. Where did that threat come from? The officials had not asked Mr. Bushnell and he had not told them.

Mr. Bushnell was then called to the stand and admitted that he might have used some such phrase as "heads would roll" but Messrs. Walker and Jennings must have misunderstood his meaning. He had meant only to indicate that the CBC must "pull up its socks" after a long series of misfortunes, including the strike on the French network last winter. Otherwise, said Mr. Bushnell, there would be a shake-up.

He denied, however, that he had received any "order or directive" from any political source in the case of the parliamentary program. Asked by Mr. Pickersgill whether he had been approached by Prime Minister Diefenbaker or "anyone who represented himself as speaking on behalf of the Prime Minister," Mr. Bushnell hesitated and then said "No."

No one who knows Mr. Bushnell, a blunt, able and honest man, will doubt his sworn testimony so far as it goes, but it does not go far.

No one who knows the inside of politics would suppose that politicians anxious to put heat on the CBC would issue any "order or directive," or represent themselves as agents of the Prime Minister. Such things are not done in this fashion.

If any political pressure was brought to bear on the CBC we may be sure that it was subtle, unwritten and perhaps untraceable. But the statements of the CBC officials—who believed in them sufficiently to resign—must appeal, as Mr. Peers says, to "reasonable men."

Apparently they did not appeal to Conservatives of the parliamentary committee. Over the protest of Mr. Pickersgill, it adjourned, shortly after hearing Mr. Bushnell, in what The Ottawa Citizen rightly calls "somewhat indecent haste."

Whatever the committee may say—a committee dominated by Government supporters in Parliament—the public will draw its own conclusions from this affair. That something happened, very high up in politics, to force the cancellation of the parliamentary program and then to restore it can hardly be doubted.

At any rate, these events have left the inward spirit of the CBC in a deplorable state from which it will not recover without much stronger management at the top and much more confidence at the bottom.

Still, unsatisfactory and hurried as it has been, the committee's investigation may have done some good. After this furore and public indignation no politician of any party will lightly attempt to influence the CBC in future.

Oil and Water

IN ITS ATTEMPT TO FORM A new national party of the Left the C.C.F. is undertaking to mix oil and water. The combination of labor unions and farm organizations is proving difficult to achieve, because their economic interests are contradictory.

Farmers naturally want the highest possible price for their foodstuffs, while urban workers naturally want the lowest possible price. The urban workers want the highest possible wages for their work and those wages represent the costs that the farmers must pay.

Moreover, the labor unions in general are fearful of foreign competition in the Canadian market, are inclined toward tariff protection, while the farmers, selling largely in the world market, are generally free traders, at least in theory.

Hence the problem of combining unions and farm organizations in the proposed new party. As the leader of a big transport union said the other day, if the new party is to win farm support there will have to be a "complete reappraisal of the socialist point of view espoused by the C.C.F." The average farmer, being a small capitalist even if he is poor, will not buy socialism.

It may be argued that the farmers of Saskatchewan already have bought socialism in the Douglas Government—but in fact they haven't. The Saskatchewan administration wears the C.C.F. label, it is competent, politically skilled and progressive but it is about as socialist as a private wheat farmer.

Its main objective, indeed, is to attract the wicked capitalists into Saskatchewan and develop industry in private hands.

As a government leader Mr. Douglas is extremely able. As a socialist he is a bust. And nobody knows better than he, after some bitter experience at the beginning, that you can't make socialists out of most farmers, you can't make oil and water mix merely by giving the C.C.F. a new labor label.

GOOD NEWS FROM WASHINGTON is the report that President Eisenhower has expressed a public vote of confidence in Mr. Charles E. Bohlen.

Mr. Bohlen is due to retire shortly from the post of United States ambassador to the Philippines, a position to which he was transferred in a widely-criticized shift from his similar office in Moscow.

Mr. Eisenhower's latest statement takes the edge from opposition by certain Republicans to the return of Mr. Bohlen to an office in which he can advise the state department on Russian affairs.

Such a move, believed favored by Mr. Herter, would be widely applauded among foreign offices of the western alliance. They appreciate the knowledge Mr. Bohlen holds on Soviet affairs and the way in which many of Russia's top figures react in international matters.

If, as expected, the United States state department is once more able to call on him as an adviser in dealings with the Kremlin, the department will overcome one self-inflicted weakness from which it has suffered too long.

Mr. Eugene Meyer

IN WASHINGTON TOMORROW people of high and low degree will pay their respects to the memory of the late Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of the Washington Post Company—a newspaper figure admired throughout this continent and beyond.

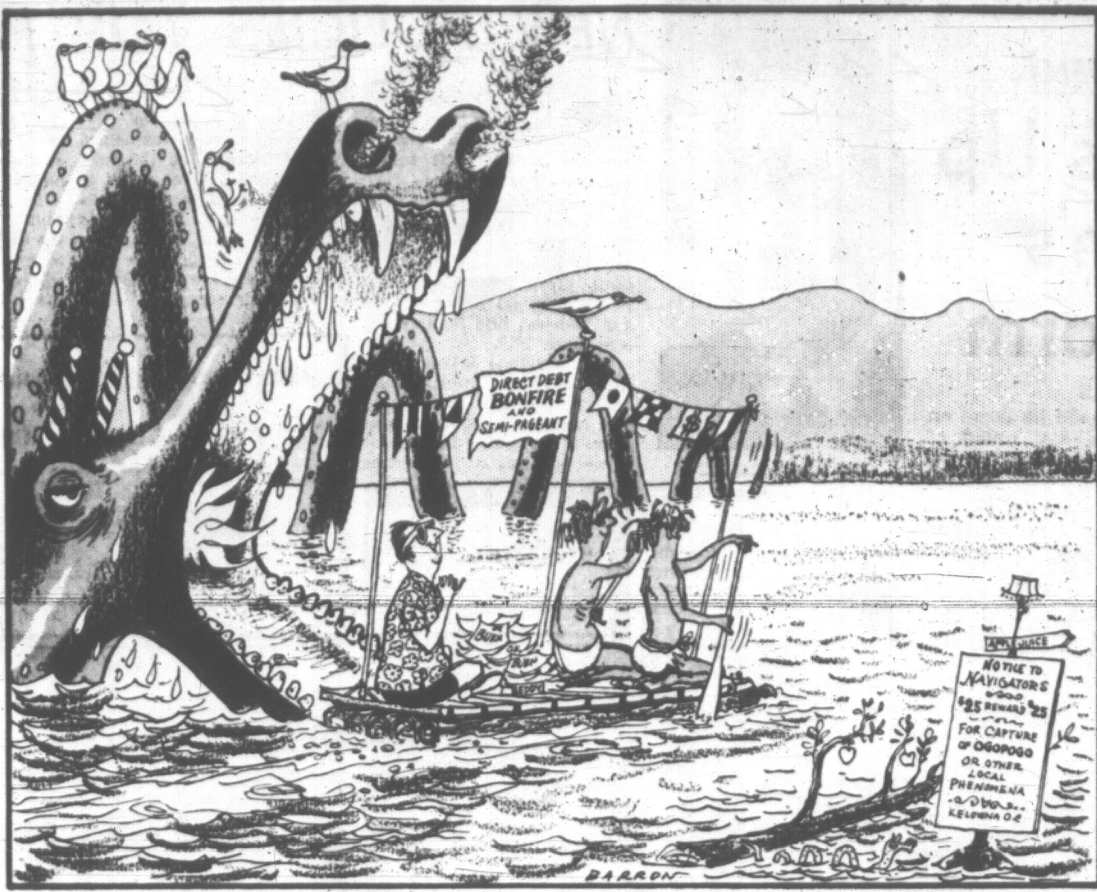

Mr. Meyer, a wealthy man, came late to the publishing business following distinguished careers in the United States government, in finance and in the oil, copper and automobile fields.

Among newspaper people and readers of this continent he is known largely for the excellence he imparted to the Washington Post, a daily which grew in strength and influence under his leadership and earned respect wherever first class journalism is recognized.

At his memorial service tomorrow many will recall the recipe for success he gave to a younger colleague: "Know more than anyone else in the same business, work harder than anyone else, and be absolutely honest."

That is a credo which stands on its own merits, and a design for living which he exemplified so well.

DIFFERENT FROM BRITISH CUSTOM

By RICHARD FRY

Canada and the Queen

NOW that the Queen has completed the first part of her Canadian visit, the tour of Eastern cities, it may be useful to analyse Canadian reactions. Two things are beyond dispute: one is that the royal couple have had a very warm welcome, the other that royalty poses a problem to Canadians, or even a dilemma. As for the popular response to the Queen and the Duke as persons it is absurd to question the sincerity of the welcome because elaborate arrangements for visits, handshakes, speeches, luncheons, and banquets broke down in one or two places—because Montreal society mobbed the Queen when she started to dance, or Toronto failed to restrict a heavy program when the temperature rose above ninety with stifling humidity.

Certainly the whole visit has been over-organized. The desire to crowd as much as possible of Canada into 45 days has led to tight minute-by-minute planning of every single day. This could only work with ideal conditions and perfect people.

But adding all the breakdowns together one must be churlish to say that they detracted from the success of the Queen's meeting with the Canadians. The Queen herself has shown least sign of strain. She bore the excessive burden of duty with angelic patience. The Duke carries less of that commodity about him and much has been made of his occasional wry jokes or bored sighs. But the people who really cracked under the stress were some of the reporters—British, American, and Canadian—who tend on these trying occasions to forget that the freedom of the press is a right of the people not of the press.

Royal pageantry, of course, worked its magic. But it involves a ceremonial formality which Canadians on the whole dislike. Complaints about excessive formality have been widespread, and it is usually attributed to what is called "the London Palace crowd." It does seem that the difficult distinction between pomp and pomposity was not always achieved, though whose fault it was would be hard to tell. In any case there is much demand for less formal, more "natural" royal visits in future.

This leads to my second point, that royalty is full of problems for Canadians. It was not just bad manners that led Miss Joyce Davidson, the Toronto television commentator, to tell an American audience on the day the Queen set foot in Canada that "like most Canadians" she was indifferent to the royal visit. Her statement was well prepared and she probably believed it to be true. In that she was not alone. It is true that the storm of protest made Miss Davidson take a holiday—from which she has since returned—but Toronto newspapers also received large numbers of letters agreeing with her. Another woman writer, June Callwood, spelled out the argument much more fully in an article in the American magazine "Look" entitled "Why Canadians resent the Queen." She insisted that many Canadians felt "a combination of indifference, annoyance, and resentment about a monarchy symbolizing the apron strings that Canadians long ago discarded." She added quite shrewdly that these feelings "stem from the same source as Canada's mounting antagonism towards the United States: a new and galloping nationalism."

"Indifference" Survey

It is not important for writers to be tactful, as long as they are truthful. The point is not whether the Queen or officials were amazed but whether the assertions made by these young ladies—not without aid from others—contain some truth and if so how much.

I have put this question to everybody I met since then. The reactions were mixed. "Indifference" certainly is the wrong word to describe Canadian feelings towards the royal visit, as the lusty, pugnacious popular argument proves.

The Mayor of Toronto, Mr. Nathan Phillips, a quick-witted, good-humored man, indignantly tried to convince me that Toronto people were more loyal than Britons and that attacks on the visit were merely attempts to gain notoriety. Others were less sure. A civil servant, a former Rhodes scholar, explained why royalty could not mean as much to Canada as to England. It did not symbolize ancient national tradition but rather recent political concepts: Canadian national unity, separate sovereignty in North America. These needs were only dimly felt by the general public. A group of business men discussing the same theme agreed that the Crown filled a vital Canadian need but thought its role was complex and contradictory—emphasizing that the association is to England and Commonwealth, and independence from the United States. They questioned whether it was wise to assume Canadian people wanted to be reminded of this dilemma by frequent royal visits.

Opposites

Two friends took opposite views across the dinner table. A newspaper editor said that the Queen ought to have her own house in Canada, come here regularly with the smallest possible retinue, and move about "naturally" until she was accepted as part of the Canadian scene.

A public servant retorted that that would sharpen controversy. He believed that royal visits should be rare and limited to State occasions. As for having a house in Canada, should she have a house in Ghana as well, or in Pakistan? If not, why single out Canada?

So the debate goes on without conclusion. Canadians are after all North Americans, exposed to the almost overwhelming American influence in every field of national life. They cling to monarchy, the parliamentary system, and Commonwealth ties more stubbornly than they might otherwise do because they feel a vital need to assert themselves against the risk of submergence in the American way of life. It is not surprising that their attitude to the Crown often differs from British custom.

In the Opinion of Our Correspondents

Sky the Limit

As has been pointed out in the press, the use of the figure $1.72 per hour by the IWA as basic pay is most misleading. The average wage paid is $2.07, $16.56 per day, plus fringe benefits. Wages range from $3.23½ per hour, $25.88 per day for top sawyer, down to $1.72, $13.76 per day for clean-up man, all plus fringe benefits. Less than 10 per cent are paid the basic $1.72 per hour.

The 20 per cent increase asked for aggregates many millions per annum, and a halt must be called somewhere. The government conciliation board did decide on 96c per day increase over a two-year period, which itself is no mean advance, and which was not accepted. In the eyes of the union the sky seems to be the limit, and how long will they continue to ask for suicidal increases? The B.C. economy and the long-suffering public simply do not enter into any union considerations.

Gratitude No Basis

In his letter headlined "Ingratitude," (Wednesday's Times), Mr. Tom Clark infers that workers should be grateful for the good wages which he says the employers have "given" them over a long period of time.

However, employers are not in a position to "give" anyone wages, good or otherwise. In the same way as the prices we pay for commodities are payment for services rendered. Clearly, therefore, wages are the worker's just due, and not a charitable donation.

It was precisely this unrealistic and somewhat callous attitude, that to give a man a job means to do him a favour, that created in the first instance the ill-will between labour and management which made the advent of trade unionism both necessary and possible.

The basic aim and purpose of a union is to secure for its members a just and equitable share of the fruits of their labors. It is not fair to say that wages are "enough" if they do not constitute an equitable share.

We know well that on many occasions unions have made demands which are unjust and unreasonable. The present

IWA dispute may be one of those occasions. We know, too, that on other occasions employers have rejected demands which are patently fair. The present dispute may also be one of these occasions.

This is, in any case, not the point here in question. The point is that the IWA is now doing the job for which it exists, and cannot be expected to be influenced by any feeling of gratitude towards the lumber companies. Gratitude is no basis for bargaining—employers, too, have often shown that they realize this.

'Rabble of Photographers'

I have just returned from the DVA Hospital after a fruitless day as far as getting any photo of Her Majesty and Prince Philip is concerned.

I was seated facing the hospital, as were my comrades in the section reserved for "disabled veterans." When the Queen arrived near that section she was preceded by a "rabble of press photographers" who completely blocked out any view a veteran might get who desired to get a photo. Their behaviour was disgraceful to put it mildly.

I believe the visit was made so that the vets could see the Royal couple and most certainly, was not for the Royal couple to witness such a complete lack of manners and disgraceful behaviour by press photographers.

Just because these men wore a card to the effect that they represented a newspaper did not entitle them to ignore the wishes of a veteran who had just as much right to take a photograph as they had.

Non-Nuclear Club

We must confess that we experienced a tug at our heart when we learned of the new plan of the opposition leaders in Britain's House of Commons. It reminded us so much of the story of David and Goliath in I Sam XVII, 38 to 51. Is this the "little cloud like a man's hand?" Will this prove to be a ray of hope in the present chaotic situation? I refer to the proposed plan to disarm Britain of her H-bombs and to suspend all nuclear tests indefinitely. And to form a non-nuclear club of all nations outside of Russia and the U.S.A. And for Britain to be the nucleus.

The author of this plan is Mr. Bevan, and it is supposed to bring victory for the Labor party in the coming election. If this comes to pass, then it will bring about the only summit meeting that can and will save this world from total destruction! I refer to a summit meeting between God Almighty and His people! Read Hosea II, 14 to 23.

I remember the words of Archdeacon Scott, "Now in this age of cruel oppression, the hearts of men are yearning for release. O soul of England—England's great possession, Lead thou mankind into the way of peace."

ANIMALS AROUND US

Near Shore

By DR. G. CLIFFORD CARL

SINCE there are almost 300 different kinds of fishes found in the salt and fresh waters of our province we can touch only a very few briefly in the present accounts and these should be either the most conspicuous or the most unusual in habit. Some of our common seashore forms fall into either or both of these categories.

Under rocks well down the shelving beach several species of fish may be seen. The most exciting find is usually a long, slender, snake-like fish commonly called an "eel." Despite its looks and manner of progression this is not an eel but a blenny, a member of a group of eel-shaped fishes common in shallow water all along our coast.

Unlike the true eel which is found only in the Atlantic Ocean and in streams draining into it, the blenny never goes into fresh water and does not make long ocean migrations. It inhabits relatively shallow water but has the ability to remain out of water several hours providing it is in a damp, cool spot as is found under a stone. Most are of small size, about four to eight inches long, but some may reach 20 inches.

Under the same rock may be found another most curious-looking fish, with a very broad flattened head and body. When distributed this little fellow sticks tightly to the rock and no amount of direct pulling can dislodge him partly because there are no "handles" to grasp. However, by sliding the fish to the nearest edge or by inserting a knife blade between its belly and the rock it can be induced to let go. Once in the hand the secret of this fish's strange power is out—it has an adhesive sucker on its ventral surface!

Efficient Sucker

Close examination shows that the disk is made up by the pelvic fins being joined to a broad fold of skin across the belly to form an efficient sucker. By means of this gadget the fish can anchor itself against surf action or possibly against predator attack. Most of our cling-fish are about three inches in length but giants may reach six.

Another fish likely to be seen here is the sculpin or bullhead, recognizable by its oversized head usually armed with spines. Several fishes of this group are also found in tide pools where they startle the observer by sudden bursts of activity, appearing out of nowhere and disappearing again the moment they brake to a stop. The color pattern of the fish is striking and conspicuous when the creature is seen out of its environment but in a multicolored tide pool it merges the animal completely with its background.

Most of our sculpins are small, ranging around two to three inches in length. Two species, the Giant Marbled Sculpin and the Great Sculpin grow to two and-a-half feet in length and live in relatively deep water. The flesh of the former is said to be palatable but the roe is poisonous.

Perhaps it is appropriate to finish off this brief survey of our fish fauna with a few notes on the lingcod—a common denizen of the waters along the rocky shores and around reefs and banks.

Greenling

Here is another example of a poorly chosen name, for this fish is neither ling nor cod but a member of the greenling family which is a group of brightly colored fishes usually associated with the kelp zone. To distinguish it from the true cods its common name is therefore spelled as one word.

The lingcod is a stupid fish whose mouth is larger than its stomach. There are many instances of fishermen capturing large lingcod which have made the mistake of trying to engulf a fish already caught on the hook and they will readily strike at a bright spoon or a metal jig. Great numbers are taken by these methods and by trolling, hand lining with herring and by bottom trawl. They are used extensively as a food fish at all seasons.

Lingcod, lay their eggs in a large mass in a rock crevice or similar situation below low tide level. Here the male stands guard viciously driving off all would-be predators. At this time a large fish may be a real menace to skin divers who may unknowingly invade the precinct of a jealous father. There are several instances of lingcod attacking human divers without provocation; without doubt the fish in each case was a guarding male reacting in the normal way toward a potential enemy. But when the attacker may weigh more than forty pounds and is armed with a large mouthful of sharp teeth he is something to be avoided.

The Golden Years

IT'S too hot for serious thought this afternoon, so let's have a little idle fun with Bob and Mabel Pullaway. You're sure to know them if you know this island as well as parts. I'm told of the

Ruth

Eraser Valley. Bob and Mabel came out to the Coast when he retired from his professional job. They were going to take things easily, they said, and bought themselves a little place in the country where they've been working themselves into the ground ever since.

The place was a bit run down, you see. As Mabel says, "the people who had it before us rather let it go. But the moment we saw it we realized it had possibilities. A bit bigger than we planned, perhaps, but all his life Bob has wanted a life like this and being able to call his soul his own."

They've brought the garden back for a start. ("My dear it was so wild. But when we started working we found all sorts of little treasures.") They've pulled all the grass from the rocky. They've subdued the wilderness that must once have been a lawn.

They've repaired the fence between the garden and the field that an irreverent visiting son refers to as "Tom and Dad's Back 40."

If they'd stayed with the garden, they might have been alright. But, of course, they didn't. "The Back 40" got them.

The first year they sold the hay on it. But one summer evening, Bob looked at Mabel and said that what they needed was a cow and with milk and cream and the strawberries she'd talked of getting. . . . "Manure," said Mabel. "Just think of the manure and how we're always wanting manure for the garden."

So they bought a cow, a pretty Jersey, due to freshen in a week or two. Tinker Bell, they called her, and marked the day of her accouchement on the kitchen calendar. Naturally, they kept the calf. But even with the calf there was more milk than they could handle. So they bought two weaner pigs.

That was the livestock side, Bob's side, as Mabel called it in spite of the fact that she had to wash the milk pails night and morning.

The hens were Mabel's, though, for she'd always wanted a few hens of her own.

The strawberries were hers, too. So were the raspberries which started as a modest little row because they felt they should have rasp or boysens to come on after the strawberries were done.

Bob and Mabel never get away, of course. They can't really, with the animals. And with the fruit, because "it would be a crime to go away right now with the rasp (or the beans, or the plums) just coming on."

The poor, poor things!

But in spite of the work, they're very happy. They talk of organic farming, pure foods, wicked fertilizers, and how we'd all be so much healthier if we led a simple life.

Only now and then does the brutal truth break through. . . .

"Are you a gentleman farmer?" the son of a visiting friend asked the other evening.

"Well, I try to be a gentleman," said Bob, "and I work like hell 18 hours a day."

"The Golden Years," said Mabel drily.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Du Maurier Called Vulgar

LONDON—Daphne du Maurier fans are in for a bit of a surprise in her new book, The Breaking Point. The surprise isn't occasioned so much by the fact that it's a collection of short stories, rather than her customary novels. It's the subject matter of most of the stories that provides the shock.

Just one cheery example is the tale of the sedate middle-aged man, walking with his wife along the Thames embankment on their regular Sunday outing, who suddenly decides he must murder somebody. He is not particular who it is, and decides on a child playing outside a slum house.

He sends his wife home, knocks on the front door of the house and tells the woman who appears that he wants a room.

"What would you want the room for?" she asks.

"To murder you and the child, my dear, and dig up the floor and bury you under the boards," run his thoughts, but he tells her he is an artist looking for somewhere to paint.

By the end of the story the woman and child are dead in a gas-filled room (she having taken the matter out of his hands).

and he is caught by a policeman disposing of a newly born baby wrapped up in paper in a street litter bin.

This and other stories in this new offering from Daphne, the darling of the lending libraries, have been described variously as "macabre," "morbid," "gruesome" and "vulgar."

Another well-known author, John Braine, is giving us a new one. The years were slipping by since the big success of his first novel, Room at the Top, and folks had begun to wonder when, or if, there would be another book from him. But he has now delivered the manuscript to his publisher.

Its title is The Viceroy and it has what would seem to be the strange theme of "a secret society of businessmen. Publication in the fall, which means you get quicker service if you're famous. I've got to wait until February before my new one comes out."

Probably never to be seen by British filmgoers—Marlon Brando's five-year-old movie, The Wild One. Banned when it was first submitted here, this film of motorcycle hoodlums invading a small U.S. town was tried again on the board of censors last week.

Repeating their thumbs-down, they said: "With the current state of juvenile delinquency, we feel it would be unwise to give it a certificate." Which means it's probably now on the shelf for good.

'WELL DONE, BILL'

spark-plugs of hard-working VSIAA executive which helped raise an estimated $8,300 for crippled children's hospital, Hoskyn also brought in second large salmon Sunday—28 pounds 14 ounces. (Times photo.)

$8,300 Donated By Derby Anglers

Smiths, Directors Show Large Field How To Fish

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Chalk up the 14th annual Solarium Derby as a victory for the Smiths and, as usual, the crippled children in Queen Alexandra Solarium.

Two of the three trophies and top prizes went to the Smiths, and the proceeds from Vancouver Island's largest one-day salmon hunt—an estimated $8,300—once again will provide a heart-warming boost for the Solarium cause.

Sunday was the day on which J. H. "Jim" Smith helped himself to a birthday present with the aid of a Rhys Davis Strip Teaser. Big Jim celebrated his 45th birthday by pulling a 30-pound, 14-ounce spring out of Saanich Inlet's sun-baked waters to take top angling prize in the derby sponsored by the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association and the Daily Times.

CAUGHT AT NOON

The combination that provided Smith with his present—a 12-horsepower outboard motor—was the Teaser, 200 feet of line and 24 ounces of weight. And he brought his junker in at 12:30 p.m.—a time when many other anglers in the large fleet were ready to scurry for the shade and cover of trees on shore.

Another Smith, 12-year-old Ron, of 811 McKenzie Street, also called on the Strip Teaser to land a nine-pounder that gave him the Jacob's Bakery Trophy and a transistor radio, the prize awarded the day's best junior angler. He is not related to Jim.

Mrs. Irene Jaundrew proved the best on the distaff side, winning a camera and the Page's Trophy with a 10.4 catch.

There were two other big winners on a day that perhaps was just a bit too perfect for comfortable fishing. George Wood, of 238 Douglas Street, won the derby's consolation prize and will receive the keys to a 1959 automobile today from derby chairman Bruce Colegrave.

SHORT OF MARK

And the other big winners were the children at the Solarium. Although the estimated total falls short of the goal set by the derby committee, the proceeds will still go a long way towards financing a ramp from the Solarium buildings to the beach on the shore of Cordova Bay. The cost of the ramp is estimated at $14,000.

Derby officials, disappointed by the early estimate which is almost $5,600 less than last year's record-breaking total of $13,949, said the exact total raised this year will not be known for several days.

This year's contribution raises to $72,800 the total donated since the VSIAA first adopted the Solarium as their personal project.

DIRECTORS HOT

There was one slight consolation for the directors. The few directors who went out and actively participated in the derby showed an estimated 800 rival anglers "how to do it."

Secretary Bill Hoskyn, Colegrave and co-chairman Ray Sparkes came in with one of the day's best catches by any one boat. They dashed in at 9 a.m. to weigh in four fair-sized sprigs.

Hoskyn boated the largest, 28.10, to claim second prize in the derby. Sparkes had a 16.10 catch to show for his efforts while Colegrave got into the prizes with two—a 12-pounder and another weighing 9.9.

Hoskyn caught his fish about 7 a.m. in Cole Bay.

IN THE NARROWS

Jim Smith, whose previous best catch in 20 years of fishing was a 28.9, landed his prize-winner in the narrow off Christmas Point. He was fishing with Tom Willey and they boated only one other salmon—a 10 pounder—with the latter doing the honors.

Failure to observe the derby's time limit cost a number of anglers a chance at the prizes. A few boats were disqualified for fishing before the number were still racing to the weigh-in stations when the gun sounded to end the derby at 2 p.m.

Perhaps the most unfortunate were Bob Jones and Bob Redgrave. They hit a hot spot in Cole Bay and wound up with six fish. Seconds before they decided to pull lines and head for the Anchorage boat-house, they tangled lines with another boat.

The delay in untangling hurt. They were less than 100 yards from the dock when the gun sounded. And of the six fish they caught, four weighed in between 14 and 19 pounds!

THE WINNAH!

Displaying 30-pound 14-ounce spring salmon that brought him top fishing prize in the 14th annual Solarium Derby, Sunday, is 45-year-old Jim Smith. It was the largest ever landed by the Victoria angler and was caught on Rhys Davis Strip Teaser.

POPULAR DRIVER

Dick's Death Shocks Fans

A pall of disbelief hung over Western Speedway fans today in the wake of popular Dick Willoughby's death on Sunday.

Speedway officials and fans alike joined in extending to his wife, Ruth, and relatives their sympathies.

The 27-year-old veteran stock car driver was killed Sunday in a mishap at Shoal Harbour while skidding.

Darryl Foster, president of the Vancouver Island Track Racing Association and also of the Victoria Skindivers' Club, said:

"It came as a horrible shock. I still can't believe it. 'What can you say? He was a great guy and a good driver.'"

It came as a shock to Speedway fans, who on Saturday had watched him drive to a fine victory in the first heat and a second-place finish in the main event.

Ironically, he had avoided accident, and possible injury, in one of the biggest and most spectacular crashes ever seen at the Langford oval in the third lap of the main event.

The multiple mishap began when a front-runner lost control of his stocker. Within seconds, nine other cars had piled up into the back wall. Only driver injured was Red Burke of Nanaimo, who was shaken up and taken to hospital but later released.

Only 12 cars were able to restart the race, won by Dave Cooper.

Wood, of 238 Douglas, an engine fitter at the Victoria Machinery Depot, stated that "it's the first thing I've ever won in my life."

He began the day by catching three hakes and he thought he was in for a bad day. He guessed wrongly.

Wood, who has been fishing for only six weeks and purchased a boat only a month ago, bought his ticket from "Cap" Barnes at the Anchorage Boathouse.

Defeat of Cowichan Extends Oak Bay Lead

A win and two draws highlighted Victoria and District Cricket League action Saturday.

Oak Bay added to their league lead with the only win of the day defeating Cowichan by five wickets at Duncan.

Incocks and Alcos played one draw at University School and Albions held off Five Cs for a saw-off at Beacon Hill.

No matches were scheduled Sunday.

Even with Derek Hyde-Lay and George Ellis batting 23s, Cowichan only managed 88 runs against Oak Bay, who replied in short order with 92 for five.

Jack Sparks bowled five for 25 to lead the way to the win.

Oak Bay: W 1, L 1, D 1, P 1, F 1, R 1, T 1, B 1, C 1, S 1, M 1, A 1, N 1, O 1, K 1, B 1, A 1, Y 1, L 1, E 1, A 1, D 1, S 1, C 1, R 1, I 1, T 1, E 1, A 1, M 1, E 1, N 1, T 1, S 1, 1959.

Novice Sports Car Driver Killed

Borrowed car that carried B. L. Kalk, 22, to his death Saturday

A novice sports car driver was killed and a companion injured when their borrowed car plunged out of control and was torn in half against a power pole on Sooke Road Saturday night.

Bruce Leonard Kalk, 22, of 2537 Prior, was dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital, where he and passenger Chis Morgan, also 22, of 406 Quebec, were taken after the devastating wreck at 7.30 p.m.

Morgan, with shock and multiple cuts, was reported in good condition today.

Both young men were thrown about 12 feet from the wreckage of the month-old sports convertible, owned by Kalk's sister, Mrs. Eunice McIsaac, of Victoria.

Among the first at the scene was a friend who had followed the "little red car" from All-Sooke Day celebrations bound for Victoria, where the friend and Kalk were to attend a dance.

Police would not identify the friend pending an inquest, to be set later by deputy coroner Dr. J. H. Moore.

Colwood RCMP said the crash happened about 50 feet west of Humber Road at a sharp right curve in Sooke Road.

Although there was no eyewitness to the accident, it appeared the sports car was unable to negotiate the curve, went off the left edge of the pavement then slammed broadside at about the driver's door into the power pole, which was uprooted.

The two-seater then hurtled some 35 feet through the air before landing on its wheels in a six-foot ditch, facing the direction it had come.

The pole was left at an angle of 45 degrees but was not shattered.

MASH OF METAL

Practically every part of the car was damaged except for

DUNCAN—"When a car is a necessity for your job you should give careful consideration to drinking while driving."

Adams was fined $100 after pleading guilty to a charge of impaired driving on Saturday, near Mill Bay.

Magistrate Sutton limited him to driving to and from work for 30 days.

the engine. From the seats to the rear deck the body was left a crumpled unrecognizable mass of metal, fabric and rubber.

There were no skid marks or tire burns on the pavement or road shoulder, indicating the car simply shot out of control into the rough.

Kalk usually drove his own 1954 model domestic sedan, which he had left parked at home where he lived with parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph B. Kalk.

Both parents and Mrs. McIsaac were out of the city when the accident happened.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by McCall's.

LOTS OF LUNKERS

Duncan Derby Rungs Filling

DUNCAN — The Cowichan Bay Salmon Club's "ladder derby" ended its first week Sunday with 10 rungs filled. Even at this date it appears as if it will take a "big un" to gain a rung on the ladder.

A total of 50 rungs must be filled by August 22. Anglers on the ladder by that date will qualify for the big fish-off Aug. 30.

Weekly prize winners were also announced. First prize of $10 for catching the biggest salmon during the first week goes to Mrs. Vivian Van Shaik of Duncan. Second prize of $5 goes to Mrs. E. Dionne of Victoria. Hidden weight prizes of $5 each go to Steve Woloshyn of Duncan and Robert Duncan of Victoria. Winners may pick their prizes up at the Cowichan Bay store. Seven of the 10 fish on the ladder weigh over 20 pounds. Results follow:

Mrs. Van Shaik, 28.8 pounds; Mrs. Dionne, 26.14; Dick James, Victoria, 26.1; Joe Latoski, Duncan, 24; Victor Rollins, Cowichan Bay, 23.4; Gordon Evans, Kokishan, 22.3; Jack Aylwin, Cowichan Bay, 21; Billy Stewart, Cowichan Bay, 18.9; Robert Duncan, Victoria, 12.12; Steve Woloshyn, Duncan, 11.5.

11 Escape Explosion, Cabin Cruiser Burns

A party of 11 from Victoria luckily escaped injury Sunday when the cabin cruiser they had left just minutes before burst into flames, exploded, and burned to the water line while moored at a private dock in Sansum Narrows on Salt Spring Island.

F. C. Pollard, 1972 Fairfield, owner of the 30-foot $7,500 cabin cruiser Panda II, said the motor was overheating on the trip out from Victoria and he had put in for repairs.

The group lost almost all their personal belongings, "including our purses," Mrs. Pollard said today.

"Some of us had to come back to Victoria in our bathing suits."

The dock caught fire and for a period it looked as though it might also blow up as flames crept towards four oil barrels.

However, fire service officials Al Loreisen and Hal Koerksen returned from extinguishing a brush fire on Galiano Island in time to put out the dock fire. A wind change also slowed fire progress towards the explosive oil. The boat was only partially covered by insurance.

Climber Alive 4 Hours After Mountain Fall

COURTENAY—Harry Winston, 33, of Crofton, was alive for more than four hours after his fall down an 80-foot rock face—and an additional 1,000-foot skid down snow-bound slopes of Mt. Argus near here July 12, a coroner's jury here heard Saturday.

He fell about 12.30 p.m. from the 6,800-foot level and died about 4.45 p.m. of skull fractures.

No blame was attached to anyone in the climbing party.

Two Victoria members of the group, Paul Mortinson, 1149 Oliver, and Reginald Knott, 630 Foul Bay, spent the night with the dead man on the cold slope.

Deepwater Fish Found In Cod At Cowichan Bay

DUNCAN — A 2½-inch-long "grunt," a fish with a shell that lives only in deep water, was caught in Cowichan Bay, inside the stomach of a ling cod.

When Jeffrey Mayea, 14, reeled the cod in and opened it up there was the grunt. Grunts get their name from the noise they make when pulled from the water.

Bay fishing guides say they are a rarity and do not live in the shallow bay.

LOGGERS AT 'PLAY' ON ALL-SOOKE DAY

Fast of foot, strong of arm, cool of courage, are woodsmen who make All-Sooke Day one of the most spectacular outdoor events on the sports calendar. A family feud between log-birling brothers Ardiel and Jubiel Wickheim in photo. No. 1 ended with a splash for Jubiel and victory for Ardiel after a long, crowd-pleasing battle. Alan Woodrow (No. 2 photo.) proved there is no substitute for sweat and skill in the log bucking contest with handsaw; but Frank McKenzie (No. 3) used mechanical aid in the chain saw contest. Despite the "machine age" tool, strength and steady arm are needed to attain speed necessary to win prizes. All contests brought forth applause and cheers from crowd of over 10,000, but most thrilling was spar tree climb, won by perennial victor, Danny Sailor (No. 4) who made ascent and descent of 84-foot spar in 32 seconds. As usual, he dropped his hat from top of tree (tiny dot at top right) and beat it to the ground in what amounts to practically a free fall. (Times photos by Jorgen Svendsen.)

MONTE ROBERTS

OUR VERY OWN ISLAND DIGEST

(Writ by hand by Our Very Own correspondents)
WOBBLE HILL, V.I. — There was a great deal of excitement here last week, flags and bunting, and decorations, etc., and the reeve and council running back and forth and committees being struck off right and also left.

It was a time of tense anticipation, and your correspondent tried very hard to find out what was going on, it being a newspaper correspondent's job to find out what is going on at all times and to trace down rumors, etc.

One of the rumors was the flags and bunting, etc., were because of the grand re-opening of Lem's Pool Hall and Chowder Emporium, but this couldn't be true because it never opened in the first place so how could it re-open?

I would go around and ask the residents what is going on but they are all out on the main street shouting and in no mood to be talked to but I will trace this excitement down as soon as it is over.

More later.

WALLOPEN BEACH, V.I. — Walloper Beach failed to be visited by Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip, which is just as well, because nothing much was going on, this being the off-season, like.

LUNCHVILLE, V.I. — A tiny, blue-eyed, curly-haired, dimple-checked, button-nosed, shell-eared, short-armed, long-legged girl of "not quite five" stole the show with a radiant smile as the lovely Queen and her tanned, handsome Prince whisked by in their long black automobile. She (the tiny girl, that is,) landed an 85-pound Tyee salmon, winning the Lunchville fishing derby.

GOON CENTRE, V.I. — This would have been the Westernmost point in the Royal Tour if the Royal Tour had come this far West.

However, the Chief Magistrate and Leading Citizen of Goon Centre, Mayor Abner Goon, refused to get into the spirit of the occasion and served everybody (including himself) with coffee royal at the Town Hall.

When he got home, he received a royal welcome. He is now doing as well as can be expected.

(The above despatch was writ by hand by your Goon Centre Correspondent, Mrs. Abner Goon).

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Driver of a car in fatal collision with a city police motorcycle July 12 faces a driving charge, police traffic department said today.

Edward G. Whitehouse, 4025 Saanich, was driver of a car in collision at Douglas near Francis with a motorbike driven by Cons. Earle Doyle, who died in hospital from head injury.

Police did not specify what charge Whitehouse will face.

Winners of the monthly master-point tournament of the Victoria unit, American Contract Bridge League follow:

North-South—Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jorgensen; Ethel Cleworth and Harry Brown; Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Waddington.

East-West—Marjorie Beale and Tony Magsh; Eric Goodwin and Jim Duprau; Elizabeth Seddon and Hildegard Rundquist.

Administrator of St. Joseph's Hospital the past six years, Sister Mary Angelus has been named Provincial Superior of the Sisters of St. Ann, with headquarters in Victoria, succeeding Sister Mary Luca who becomes superior at St. Ann's Hospital, Juneau, Alaska.

The territory includes B.C., Alaska and the Yukon.

New superior at St. Joseph's is Sister Mary Anne Celesta, for the past year administrator of St. Martin's Hospital in Oliver, B.C.

A meeting of the Prayer and Healing Study Group will be held Wednesday at 3 p.m. in Christ Church Cathedral Memorial Hall.

The provincial cabinet meets at Kitimat Tuesday and at George Thursday. Premier Bennett will also make a rail visit to Fort St. John before returning to Victoria next week. Out-of-capital cabinet meetings were started last year. There have been as many as 40 or 50 delegations heard during some of these sessions.

City firemen stood by more than an hour after putting out a small fire in waste under a table saw at Atom Lumber, Tyee Road, at 2:30 a.m. There was no further out-break reported.

What with Sunday's super-hot temperature and fires in their kitchen stoves, two Victoria housewives must really be burned up.

Firemen were called to douse a burning roast at 903 North Park at 1:11 p.m., and to another oven fire at 1143 Pandora 2 1/2 hours later.

An unoccupied, two-room shack at Colwood Corner burned to the ground Saturday afternoon.

Firemen said flames had such a hold on the 12 foot by 12 foot structure they were unable to save it.

Members of No. 3 Aged Pensioners' Association who intend to go on an organized cruise to Port Angeles Thursday, should pick up tickets at Blaney's Travel Service Ltd., 920 Douglas, as soon as possible. Officials said today. The cruise starts at 9 a.m.

A tourist from Seattle has asked city police to investigate the theft of $300 U.S. funds and $19 Canadian currency from his wallet which he lost in a store at Fort and Cook Friday night.

J. D. Chalmers, who was staying at Beacon Lodge, 30 Douglas, said he lost the wallet while shopping.

The wallet, minus money, was found by an Oak Bay resident in Stadacona Park and turned over to Oak Bay police.

Dr. Derek French of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, was given the happy chore of selecting the winners among 50 babies who entered the contest.

One of the most spectacular sporting events was a battle royal between two world champion birlers; Sooke brothers Ardiel and Jubiel Wickheim, for the Vancouver Island log-birling championship.

All-Sooke Day Called Rival For Stampede

All-Sooke Day rivals the Calgary Stampede for excitement, color, and "grass roots" sports.

This is the opinion of many visitors from the U.K. and the United States among the crowd of more than 10,000 who watched the 23rd annual event Saturday.

They suggested All-Sooke Day is underplayed, and that the provincial government should assist in promoting a Highland-games type of meet to attract entries from all over the province.

"These are the grass-root sports of this province," Gerald L. Padden, Durham, England, said. "Talk about the Calgary Stampede — you don't have to be envious. This Sooke show is real Canada."

Mr. Padden, who is staying with his son Brian, 634 Gorge West, said he was amazed at the speed the loggers chopped through square timbers. The log-birling and tree-climbing contests also impressed him.

J. A. Richard of Wales was equally enthusiastic.

"I've never seen anything like this in my life," he said. "It's wonderful."

NEVER MISSED IT
But it was not only visitors who were thrilled by the sports. Mrs. May Kowalyk, 749 Roderick Street, who has lived 35 years in Victoria and who attended her first All-Sooke Day Saturday, said: "I will never miss this event again."

There was bright sunshine for the field sports and logging events, including the famous world championship log-birling in the Sooke River. The usual traffic tie-ups were at a minimum, made possible by the construction of extra parking space across the river.

The hot weather did not curb the appetite of patrons. They consumed more than 500 pounds of prime barbecued beef and 2,000 pounds of barbecued spring salmon.

Herbert Bruch, M.L.A., Esquimalt, opened the loggers' festival which started with sports for children.

Nine-month-old Frederick Garry Coutts, was chosen as the best baby in the All-Sooke Day show and the winner of the Victoria Daily Times Trophy. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Coutts 3066 Tillamook Road, Saanich.

SOOKE BABY
The best Sooke baby was Kenneth Charles Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Hill.

Best baby six months and under was Janet Elaine Raymond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Raymond, 3318 Aloha Road.

Dr. Derek French of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, was given the happy chore of selecting the winners among 50 babies who entered the contest.

One of the most spectacular sporting events was a battle royal between two world champion birlers; Sooke brothers Ardiel and Jubiel Wickheim, for the Vancouver Island log-birling championship.

Fishing Strike Appears Certain

Last Minute Talks Fail

A last-minute attempt by the Fisheries Association of British Columbia to avert a tie-up of British Columbia's $98,000,000 - a year fishing industry has failed.

James Sinclair, president of the association, said in Vancouver today officials of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.) flatly rejected the latest proposal.

The association offered a 3 per cent increase each year in a two-year agreement, a company pension plan and other fringe benefits, Mr. Sinclair said.

UNION FIRM

"But the union would not budge and it looks like there will be a strike next weekend."

Government-supervised strike vote will be held among 5,000 shoreworkers Friday. The workers have threatened strike action to back up demands for a 20 per cent increase in the basic rate which ranges from $1.32 to $1.67 hourly.

In companion disputes 650 tendermen, who work aboard packers that transport fish to canneries from boats, are seeking a 1/4-cent-a-pound bonus on all fish carried and about 5,000 salmon seiners seek an increase of between 3 1/2 to 8 cents a pound depending on the variety of salmon. Both groups are scheduled to walk out Saturday.

Mr. Sinclair said the association offer was 50 per cent better than a majority conciliation board report which recommended shoreworkers receive a 2 per cent increase each year.

A strike would hit the province's second largest industry during its peak salmon period — between July 27-August 10.

Meanwhile threat of a strike in neighboring Washington state has been averted with the signing of a new agreement.

KIWANIANS MEET TO DISCUSS VILLAGE HOUSING EXPANSION

Directors of Kiwanis Village Society meet tonight to plan an expansion of the senior citizens' housing development.

The society has offered $3,000 as a nominal payment for 14 city-owned lots adjacent to the $350,000 project now totalling 30 housing units.

The society also has asked the city to close McNair Street, which the lots span, and turn it over in the same deal.

Kiwanis president Reginald Harris said tonight's meeting would decide the extent and timing for the proposed expansion.

FORTUNE AT STAKE

Court Ruling Soon On John Hart Will

A decision is expected soon on a Canada Trust application heard in Victoria before Supreme Court judge A. D. Macfarlane for a legal interpretation of a section of the will of former B.C. Premier John Hart.

The outcome will decide whether the bulk of Mr. Hart's $361,000 estate will go to a number of nephews and nieces in Ireland and the U.S., or to his long-time secretary and companion of Mrs. Hart, Miss Ruth Marie Norton, of Victoria.

When Mr. Hart died in April, 1957, he left his home furniture, lands, car, jewellery and other personal possessions to the widow, Harriet. She was also to get the interest on the invested $361,000 capital.

He stipulated in his will (section F) that "Upon my wife's death I direct my trustees to distribute the residue of my estate in the same manner as it would be distributed had I died intestate."

CLAUSE AT ISSUE
This is the section before the court. Mrs. Hart died May 31, 1958, leaving the property she inherited from her husband to Miss Norton.

What the executors of Mr. Hart's will, Canada Trust, want to know from Mr. Justice Macfarlane is: Is Miss Norton entitled to receive the capital of Mr. Hart's estate, or should it go to the six distant nephews and nieces?

Had Mr. Hart died intestate (without making a will) his estate presumably would have passed to Mrs. Hart and then, after her death, automatically to his surviving relatives, the six nephews and nieces.

However, because of the vested interest in the estate, the executors want to know whether Miss Norton is entitled to benefit.

D. M. Gordon (Crease & Co.) represents Canada Trust, W. H. M. Haldane for Miss Norton and E. C. McIntyre for the next-of-kin.

The next-of-kin, the six nephews and nieces, are listed as Daniel John McBrady, of San Francisco; Joseph Michael McBrady, of Seattle; Francis and Rosetta Canning, and Catherine Callan and Bridget Reynolds, of Elre.

Mrs. Hart, an invalid in her later years, received $35,413 from the estate in the year between her husband's and her own death, along with some $14,000 out of the capital for nursing and medical expenses.

NEW YORK—Russian production is not all caviar and tractors—take a look at these export models. Soviet girls, more swiftness than we're used to seeing, display the latest in Russian fashions at the current Soviet exhibition of industry, science and culture in New York's Coliseum. Models, from left, are Marina Divleva, Natalya Borodina, Valentina Jashina, Lilia Grishina and Tamara Mingashudimova. (AP Wirephoto).

Woman Engineer More Glamorous Than Fashion Model in Russia

NEW YORK (UPI)—The glamour jobs in Russia belong to the lady engineers and architects. The model is not on the pedestal she occupies in this country.

Two of the Soviet models in New York for Russia's cultural and technological exhibition discussed modeling as a career through an interpreter, Raya Kuleshova, commentator for the twice-daily fashion show.

The models were Valya Yashina, 32, a blue-eyed blonde with classic features, and Tamara Mingashudimova, 23, whose Tartar ancestry shows in her high cheekbones and dark, brunette beauty.

"What means glamour?" said the interpreter when I asked whether Russians consider modeling a glamorous profession. I explained that it means glorified; that most American girls admired, envied and would like to be models.

"Modeling is a usual profession in our country," said Miss Kuleshova. "It is the engineers and architects who are considered glamorous."

Both Valya and Tamara have been modeling five years. Both are married—Valya, who has a nine-year-old son, to an engineer. Tamara's husband is a student at the Moscow Cinema Institute, where he is learning motion picture production.

LOFTY AIMS Neither plans to make modeling a long-term career. The interpreter spoke up to say that "their ambition is to raise the tastes in dress of Russian women."

But Tamara added that she also does designing and wants eventually to stop showing clothes and just make them. Valya said she was acting, but with a small boy she had to find a job less demanding of her time. She is with the All-Union House of Fashion in Moscow.

Soviet models do not earn anywhere near the fees some top U.S. models get, but they look better fed on a lesser salary.

They are paid by the month, from 1,500 to 1,800 rubles. A ruble is worth about 25 cents at the U.S. rate of exchange; about 10 cents if you are spending it in Russia.

Unlike U.S. models, the photographic model in Russia earns no more than her sister who walks the runway. Here, according to the Plaza Five Agency which books some of New York's most beautiful girls, the top high-fashion mannequin earns $40 an hour. During the busiest season—"market week"—when the Seventh Avenue showrooms are full of buyers—she may work a nine or 10-hour day. A top photographic model gets $60 an hour.

WELL BUILT

Valya and Tamara both are approximately 5 feet 7 inches tall, weigh about 125 pounds, and have proportions more like the healthy all-American girl than the gaunt American model. They are 36, 26 and 37 instead of the 34, 23, 34 of a plump five type; whose 110 to 118 pounds are stretched over a five feet seven to five feet nine frame.

There's a difference in dress too. The waist cincher, padded bra and panty girdle are standard equipment for most of our models. The Russian girls do not wear girdles and don't need padding.

NO DIETS

Neither Valya nor Tamara diets. They explained, "we keep in shape with sports, gymnastics... swimming, tennis and volleyball." They think our models are too thin—"a model should be like the rest of the people," said one. They laughed when I told them the observation of one of their countrywomen when she saw the models who went to Moscow for the house of Dior.

"Macaroni legs," said the Russian woman of the French gams.

Muriel Grace Trimble Married; Now to Make Home in California

Honeymooning at Qualicum, then motoring to California where they will make their home, are newlyweds of Saturday evening, Dr. and Mrs. C. Tubach. Wedding took place in Oak Bay United Church with Rev. A. Calder officiating.

Bride is the former Muriel Grace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Trimble of Victoria, and her groom is the son of A. O. Tubach, Oakland, Calif. Dr. Tubach is on the faculty at the University of California. Pink and white gladioli decorated the church for the candlelight service. F. Kroeger played traditional organ music and Bach chorales.

Entering the church on the arm of her father, the brown haired bride was radiant in her gown of white lace over taffeta. Bodice was fitted and was fashioned with a wide scalloped neckline and lily point sleeves. A waist-length skirt swirled from the low waistline. Deep red roses and stephanotis were in the bridal bouquet. Picture was completed by a finger-tip embroidered veil misting from the bride's pearl coronet.

A rose pink lace gown over taffeta was worn by matron of honor, Mrs. G. F. Hallier, the bride's sister. It had a scooped neckline, three-quarter length sleeves and the high empire waistline was tied at the back in a large satin bow. A pink coronet with short face veil completed the outfit. She carried a spray of red roses and pink feathered carnations.

G. F. Hallier was best man and ushers were Andrew Cochrane and Cas Sapala.

Mother of the bride wore a pale blue two-piece lace dress fashioned with a wide roll collar. Her accessories were in orchid pink and she had an orchid corsage. Leaving on honeymoon, the bride wore a two-piece blue wool dress completed with a black and white checked top coat, white accessories and an orchid corsage.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — The first half of 1959 saw President Eisenhower's golf chased out of the leading joke files by "sick" jokes, sacrilegious gags, cracks about Liz Taylor, Eddie Fisher and Brigitte Bardot... and the composers' tendency to bring out songs with such titles as "The Funeral March Cha Cha Cha". Richard Nixon was laugh chaff; however, in the Best Laughs of the first "sick" months of 1959.

Comedian Joey Bishop, playing a Las Vegas gambling spot, the Sands, observed that Frank Sinatra had been made vice-president. "I was never too crazy about Nixon, anyway," he said. A mother told her small son if he behaved and studied, he might become President some day, or even Vice-President.

Kid singers Fabian, Frankie Avalon and Ricky Nelson affected our humor. Comedian Corbett Monica said that kids get married now at 14 and instead of going on a honeymoon, "they go to camp." Arlene Francis maintained that her son, a voracious reader, was quite disappointed in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame"—he thought it was the success story of a handicapped half-back at South Bend.

Fidel Castro was supposed to have had a song written for him commemorating his executions, titled "The Bang Bang Bang Cha Cha Cha." John Daly reported seeing a subway sign saying: "Support Mental Health, or I'll Kill You!" Everybody was writing songs, and Roger Price asked one composer, "What do you steal first—the words or the music?"

A B'way restaurant burned down and Max Asnas, the delicatessen owner, said, "They finally got some hot food in that joint."... A Texan selling foreign cars listed his business under "Souvenir Shops."... Martha Kay said Hollywood is the place where more parents than children runaway from home... Sam Levenson claimed one of his kids announced he was going to run away from home and added, "Call me a taxi!"

DON'T PRINT THAT!

The hero of a TV series sub-leased his apt. to a pretty starlet, but she had to call the cops when he refused to leave... The mgr. of a popular film star has a problem with his glamorous client; she shows up promptly for TV interviews—but too loaded to talk.

EARL'S PEARLS: Definition of an efficiency expert: A man who waits to make up a foursome before going through a revolving door.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Jackie Miles complains that his wife is a pushover for TV pitchmen: "We own everything in the world that costs $125 a week."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Marriage is like a violin. After the beautiful music is over, the strings are still attached. A harassed motorist reported he'd finally found a garage for his car: "It cost only $24,000, including the house"... That's earl, brother.

Teen-Age City Girls Row Strait After Fireworks

Three Victoria teen-age girls rowed across the Strait of Juan de Fuca early Saturday after viewing the Royal Canadian Navy's fireworks display in honor of the Queen and Prince Philip.

They left here in eight-foot dinghy just after midnight and stepped ashore in Port Angeles around 6:15 a.m.

Were they scared?

"No," said 15-year-old Eleanor Whitehead of 506 Gore, who made the trip with Marcia Kane, 13, and her sister Ruth, 14, of 908 Lyall.

Were their parents scared?

"Oh yes," said Eleanor.

The three girls spoke lightly of a marathon rowing trip which veteran Victoria boatmen say they would not have attempted in daylight—still less in the dark.

'Bad to Worse' In Red China?

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Conditions inside Communist China are going from bad to worse, the official Chung Hua China Daily News says. The Nationalist newspaper says the Communists used tanks to suppress mobs which on May 10-11 tried to raid food depots at Changchun in Manchuria and that more than 300 casualties resulted from the clash.

Hot Winds Spread Big Oregon Blaze

PORTLAND, Ore. (CP)—Fire swept over more than 30,000 acres of rural Oregon today, fanned across arid range and timbered lands by hot summer winds.

Winds up to 15 miles an hour were forecast for today and threatened to help the flames spread.

"If the wind comes up... we will not be able to catch the fire," said John C. Hunt, fire dispatcher for the federal bureau of land management.

"In that case it will spread into the Fremont national forest," Hunt was talking about a fire that has covered between 20,000 and 30,000 acres of rangeland in southern Oregon.

Also burning out of control were 1,000 acres of mountain timberland in central Oregon and 2,500 acres of grass-lands on the Warm Springs Indian reservation of northeastern Oregon.

California continued to fight a 1,000-acre fire in the rugged Stanislaus national forest. More than 500 firefighters surrounded the blaze and dispatcher Charles Westmoreland said, "We may have to hold it several days before we can say it's controlled."

Most spiders have eight single-lens eyes, enabling them to see in eight directions at once.

Distance swimmer Jim Woods heads back to the warmer waters of Florida today after 4 hours in Juan de Fuca Strait, Sunday, fighting tides and a head cold.

'Nighthawk' Pigeon Sets Speed Record

A homing pigeon owned by Charles Woolley, 2895 Inlet Drive, has set a new record for the Edmonton-to-Victoria race.

The speedy bird abandoned the usual custom of roosting during the night and chipped 18 hours off the old mark to come in after 24 hours and 39 minutes.

Mark was set for the 557-mile run during a recent pigeon race by members of the Capital City Racing Pigeon Club.

Eighty-two-year-old Mr. Woolley said today that this could be claimed as a record for the distance since every racing bird is banded from birth with a code number to prevent switching of birds.

SEALED WATCHES

Sealed timepieces are used in official races and records are kept in clubs all over North America and Europe.

Mr. Woolley has been breeding and racing for over 30 years and regularly competes against his son Bernard, also a member of the club.

Badges Awarded For Proficiency

The following proficiency badges were issued during the past week by the Victoria District, Boy Scout Association.

Tenderpad: Robert Lee Jack Seto, Donald Seto, Milton Chan, Neil Chan, Dick Lowe, Gilbert Chew, Tony Quan, and Gordon Wong.

Swimmer badge was presented to B. Kirkpatrick, David Neilson won his Second Class Scout award, and Tony Collis was given his Camper and Public Health Man badges.

Ustinov Playing Churchill?

LONDON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill has turned down plans to make a movie of his life. The Daily Herald said today.

The newspaper reported the former prime minister did not approve of a script which Metro Goldwyn Mayer planned to shoot with either Orson Welles or Peter Ustinov playing the role of Churchill.

Sol Siegel, MGM vice-president in charge of production, was quoted as saying: "As far as we are concerned, the idea has been dropped."

"Perhaps it is not the kind of idea a Hollywood company can tackle. It would probably be better handled by a British company closer to the subject."

MGM spent thousands of dollars trying to create a screen treatment acceptable to Churchill. Rumors said Churchill would have received $500,000 in royalties over several years.

California continued to fight a 1,000-acre fire in the rugged Stanislaus national forest. More than 500 firefighters surrounded the blaze and dispatcher Charles Westmoreland said, "We may have to hold it several days before we can say it's controlled."

3 Bids for TV Spot In Vancouver Area

VANCOUVER (CP)—Three groups in Greater Vancouver plan to apply for licences to operate a private television station.

Spokesmen for radio stations CKWX, Vancouver; CKNW, New Westminster, and CKLG, North Vancouver, said their companies have definite plans to apply for licences.

In addition, Vancouver advertising man W. E. (Bill) Bellman and a group of lawyers have indicated intentions of applying for a licence.

One of the lawyers, H. Lyle Jesty, has announced formation of Pacific Television Company, Ltd., with authorized capital of $1,500,000 and land to set up a station.

Plans were announced Saturday following Revenue Minister Nowlan's announcement in the Commons that private television will be permitted to compete with the CBC in major Canadian cities. There are two channels available for private stations in the Vancouver area.

TV with Polka

Polka-Go-Round Features Detroit Scholarship Students at 7.30 on 4
By PHIL LEE, Times TV Editor
IN RETROSPECT - Like most Canadians I have been following the progress of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip via TV from coast to coast - perhaps more than many because television-watching is my main job.

TV TEE-NEES
"Okay, move it to the next window."

For in these two instances she saw Canadians as themselves, without furbelows, without trappings, garnishments or any other form of pretense. They were themselves, Canadians at home in their own settings.

Now I understand that there were some complaints from viewers about the original live telecasts from Nanaimo, that from time to time various persons blocked out the camera's eye. I can't attest to this for I only saw the repeat but the repeat was a gem.

Speaking in showbusiness terms the show was beautifully staged. There were long shots to allow for atmosphere and, perhaps, best of all, there were enough closeups of the Queen and her husband, of the Indians in their ferocious masks, of their sweater-making, their splendid racing canoes and so on to please the most demanding viewer.

But it was, in addition to the splendid photography, an array of "little things," that warm any showman's heart... Prince Philip-hatching the first notch in a giant log that was to be made into a long racing canoe, the Queen so interested in the sweater-making, the tribal dances and in just about everything. But possibly the most touching thing of all came from the children and their delightful singing of "Getting to Know You" from "The King and I."

I like to think that Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein would have been delighted if they had known.

According to Pat Blake, publicity editor for the CBC, Vancouver, success of such functions can be attributed to the small, portable RF camera that is being used for the first time during the Royal tour. It is small, looks something like a space man's pistol, and operates from a battery pack slung on the back of the lone cameraman. Also on his back is a transmitter and an inter-com transmitter.

This must be a queer feeling for the operator, however, for although he goes about procuring the best shots he can he doesn't know whether or not his pictures are being used. This is up to the overall director who, of course, is in charge of all cameras, utilizing them as he sees fit.

TO ALL THOSE who are beefing about CHEK-TV and their lack of coverage of the Queen's visit here, Friday - don't be mad, just feel sorry.

According to Russ Furse, the local station's every-trying, very earnest general manager, tears around the studio are flowing like Bowker Creek in flood. They had everything so well planned, he explained in sabbie black tones, Saturday. But what happened shouldn't have happened to a dog.

CHEK sent out four cameramen to cover the Queen and Prince Philip, at the Veterans' Hospital, at the color presentation, at the children in Beacon Hill Park, at the garden party. The general idea was to devote a solid quarter hour on Friday evening's news to the Royal couple.

But the largest slice of the film it was decided - 10 minutes running time in all - should be devoted to the magnificent color ceremony.

What happened? They were developing the film when someone walked in to the darkroom and inadvertently turned on the lights. And there went the entire color ceremony and CHEK-TV's hopes of turning in a cracking good job.

So now you know.

Artists Open Gallery for Local Talent

Four young Victoria artists will open their own special gallery for local paintings at 1106 Broad Street next Tuesday at 8 p.m.

"The public art gallery cannot hope to accommodate all the work done by local artists," says Chris Phillips, founder of the Appollo Art Galleries.

"We are trying therefore to broaden the outlook for local talent."

The Appollo Art Gallery will exhibit paintings by most well-known Victoria artists and some whose work has never been exhibited before.

The gallery will charge no fee for exhibiting the paintings but will take a percentage on the purchase price of those that are sold.

On these terms all Victoria artists are invited to offer their work for display.

CO-PARTNERS

Co-partners with Mr. Phillips in this enterprise are his wife, Alma, and Mr. and Mrs. Ian Fleming Gow.

In addition to their own works, the artists will display paintings by Herbert Siebner, Bob Wood, Peggy Packard, William West, Cicci-marra, Michael Morris, Alice Carey and Ted Goodall.

Chris Phillips will display his own painting "The Sad Clown," an abstract version of Pagliacci.

The Appollo Galleries will have an illuminated staircase decorated with two heraldic shields, designed and executed by Joan Fleming Gow.

They will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday to Friday, admission free.

Boy Slashed By Leopard At Circus

RICHMOND, Wash. (AP)—A half-grown leopard clawed a seven-year-old Richmond boy at the Cole Brothers' circus here Saturday.

Richmond police said Kenneth Baird crawled under a rope into a prohibited area and lifted a corner of the sliding door of the leopard's cage.

As the boy was peering in, the animal lashed out and clawed him in the face. He was taken to a Richmond hospital, where he was bandaged up but in good condition Saturday night.

A four-year-old girl, Wilma Westerdale, poked her finger into a monkey's cage at the same circus and got it bitten. She was treated at the hospital and released.

Narcotics-Carrying Pigeons Grounded

NEW YORK (AP)—Police raiders here seized 30 pigeons they said may have been used as narcotics carriers. The narcotics squad reported finding five ounces of heroin and the pigeons in a Bronx apartment. Police said the apartment was occupied by Tony Santana, 31, released from jail four months ago after a narcotics conviction.

New Peru Government

LIMA, Peru (Reuters)—Pedro Beltram, former ambassador to the United States, announced a new Peruvian government Saturday night with himself as prime minister and finance minister. Beltram was called on to form a government early this month after Gallo Porras, resigned in the face of strong opposition at attacks on fiscal policy.

SWORD TO CRUCIFIX

Engineer Colonel Enters Priesthood

New assistant priest at St. Andrew's Cathedral is a 58-year-old former army officer who celebrated his first Victoria mass there Sunday.

But Father Cedric Rudolph Janvrin has been here before. In 1953, then a lieutenant colonel in the Royal Engineers on his way to Korea, he stopped off in Victoria to visit Bishop James Hill and was accepted as a candidate for the priesthood in this diocese.

He began his studies two years later, including a period at Beda College, Rome, and was ordained last March.

Father Janvrin recalls that while in Korea and Rome he maintained correspondence with some of the children of Songhees Indian School, whom he met in 1953.

CHOOSE CHALICE

Two of the Indian children—Gordon and Johnnie Modeste—wanted to give him an ordination gift. On their own initiative they obtained a catalogue and chose a chalice, then began organizing collections among the other children to obtain the money.

Later, Father Janvrin suggested Pope Pius XII might use the chalice if he knew the story. The priest remembers that the Pope was "deeply moved" and was the first person to use the chalice — on

CORPORAL AND SIX FELLOW constables from traffic detail of Victoria police force were pallbearers Saturday for Cons. Earle Doyle, who was killed when, thrown from his motorcycle in collision with automobile. Seventy policemen plus city officials attended funeral.

COMMISSIONERS ATTEND

Police Funeral For Earle Doyle

Funeral of former City Police Constable Earle Doyle was attended Saturday by some 70 of his fellow policemen and an equal number of city officials and friends.

Rev. H. D. Johnstone conducted the service in McCall Bros. Funeral Chapel.

Following the service the casket was carried from the chapel by pallbearers, six members of the city police force.

They were: Cpl. Joseph Barlow, and Constables Donald Bule, Ray Thomas, Ivan Purdy, William Sommerville, and James Ramsay.

Preceding the casket were Mayor Percy Scurrell and city police commissioners Chester Dowman and William Hamilton.

The official cars left for Central Park behind an escort of four motorcycles followed by the police department and six representatives of the RCMP.

The procession was disbanded at Central Park when family and friends travelled to Royal Oak Cemetery for interment.

FOUR KILLED UNDER TREES BY LIGHTNING

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two lightning bolts killed four persons and injured five others Sunday. The victims had hidden beneath trees seeking shelter from mid-afternoon thundershowers.

One of the injured was listed in "serious" condition early today; the others were all described in "fair" condition.

The dead and injured fell victim to two bolts of lightning that struck about six miles apart Sunday afternoon in the Bronx.

A crowd of about 75,000 to 100,000 was seeking respite from the 86-degree heat at Orchard Beach on Long Island Sound when the storm clouds gathered there.

Former Citizen Dies On Prairies

Thomas Henry Cooper, 82, a former resident of Victoria, died recently at Shoal Lake, Manitoba.

Funeral services were held last Friday at Druid, Sask., where Mr. Cooper had resided since he left Victoria in 1925.

He is survived by two sons—Frank in Victoria and Ross at Druid; and two daughters, Mrs. Campbell Earle of Victoria and Mrs. Ward Miller of Renton, Washington.

There are 10 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren. Born at Arthur, Ont., Mr. Cooper was a harnessmaker by trade and operated his own business in Manitoba. After his five years in Victoria he took up residence on a farm near Druid, Man.

He was a member of the Independent Order of Foresters at Shoal Lake.

ACROSS THE PROVINCE

2 Couples Die in Plane Crash

Eight persons died in week-end accidents on the B.C. mainland.

Two men and their wives on a fishing trip in the interior were killed Saturday afternoon when their light aircraft plunged into a railway station at Pavilion, on the Pacific Great Eastern railway.

Dead are Mr. and Mrs. K. W. Morrison of Vancouver and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Taylor of Surrey.

Michael Dennehy, 27, of Vancouver, was drowned Saturday at Gibsons, on the north side of Howe Sound, when he was swimming with two companions.

Ronald Higginbotham of Whonnock died in hospital Sunday of injuries suffered when he was hit by a car at Haney Saturday night.

Jacob Penner, 14, of Sumas, was drowned Sunday near Sumas Springs.

Judith Cunniff, 4, of Cranbrook, drowned near her home while on a picnic with her parents. She fell into the Bull River.

In the Pavilion air crash, it was speculated the plane may have been caught in a downdraft.

An eye witness, Arthur Potter of Victoria, said the plane came in low and wavering toward a group of about 35 people clustered around the store across the street from the station house.

Potter said the plane banked to the right, apparently to miss the crowd, and smashed into the railway station house. He said the plane crashed only 20 feet from where the people were standing.

He said they rushed over to the wreckage but all four were dead.

POLICEMAN SHOT

KITIMAT—Constable Carl Lauritzen, 20, was found shot in the arm early Sunday after he answered a call to a garage where a prowler had been spotted.

Constable Lauritzen, who suffered a wound in the right arm, was reported still in shock Sunday night and unable to give fellow officers an account of what had happened. Hospital officials said his condition was satisfactory, however.

TANNERY BURNED

VANCOUVER—The Pierre Paris and Sons tannery was destroyed when fire broke out in the False Creek area here Sunday. About 60 firemen and 10 pieces of equipment fought the fire while a fire boat stood by in False Creek.

$180,000 FIRE LOSS

PRINCE GEORGE—Two separate fires ripped through downtown buildings here Sunday, causing an estimated $180,000 damage.

Gutted in the flames were a grocery store, a general store, and a boarding house. Another building and a service station also suffered damage.

SCISSORS STABBING

VANCOUVER—A 27-year-old woman was held by police following the Saturday night stabbing of a man with a pair of scissors in a hotel room. Claude Simaud was found near the hotel suffering from deep face cuts and a stab wound in one leg.

MR. K CANCELS TOUR AFTER 'SOUR' PRESS

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev today abruptly cancelled a scheduled tour next month of four Scandinavian nations. A formal Soviet note said the surprise decision was due to a bitter press campaign against the visit and threats of anti-Soviet demonstrations.

It's Official: Hot! Hot! And Hotter!

It will be a scorcher for at least several more days, the weatherman predicted today.

A forest closure in Vancouver Forest District, which includes Vancouver Island, also is looming.

ADMIRAL DIES

U.S. Admiral of the Fleet William Daniel Leahy, wartime chief of staff to president Roosevelt, died of a stroke in hospital at Bethesda, Md., today. He was 84.

Clear, hot weather will "carry on for several days yet as far as I can see at the moment," meteorologist William Mackie said. "There's no change in sight."

That means temperatures in the 70s by the sea shore ranging up to 85 degrees in the city and all inland points.

SOME RELIEF

Light sea breezes will bring some relief in the afternoons and evenings. Weak weather disturbances will cool interior points of the province with some rain, after passing up the coast without a drop.

Last rain fell in Victoria July 5.

Beaches were jammed with young and old and forests were drying—and burning up—over the hot weekend.

Maximum temperatures Saturday and Sunday recorded at the seaside Gonzales Hill weather station were 76 and 74 respectively but ran 10 to 15 degrees higher elsewhere.

HIGH HAZARD

Neither was a record but the dry heat reminded everyone of last year's record summer heatwave as the pattern began repeating.

High hazard conditions prevail in the woods and 12 new fires devoured timber stands in the district over the weekend.

Worst fire in the district this year, on the 2,000-foot level at Mt. Brenton "will be contained" if winds stay down, forest officials said today.

Already more than 70 acres have been destroyed, which included 250,000 board feet of felled and bucked timber.

Seventy-five men are on the fire line, three caterpillar tractors, two tank trucks and two aerial water bombers standing by.

MEADE FIRE

A seven-acre blaze attended by 60 forest service men at Meade Creek near Cowichan Lake "is being held" at present. The blaze is at the 2,500-foot level.

On Salt Spring Island three outbreaks, caused by campers or smokers, were put out. Near Nanaimo outbreaks at two places were extinguished.

At Toba Inlet on the mainland, more than 20 men are battling a blaze of unknown size.

"The manpower situation is serious here," the service reported.

At Jervis Inlet, 20 men are fighting a three-acre blaze. There was a "slight moisture recovery" over the area Sunday night, but insufficient to cut back on the chance of forest closure.

In effect this would not be as drastic as it appears as coast IWA members are on strike, and are quickly available for firefighting.

TOUCHED LIVE CABLE

Freak Mishap Kills City Skindiver

A Victoria skindiver and stock-car driver was killed in a freak accident at Sidney Sunday when he was knocked into Shoal Harbor by a shock from an electric cable running along the wharf.

Dead as a result of doing a good deed is Dick Willoughby, 27, of 1837 Crescent.

According to Sidney RCMP, Willoughby and some friends were planning to go skindiving Sunday morning. They prepared a boat at Shoal Harbor and were about to leave when Tony Johnson, who owns a houseboat tied up to the wharf, found he had lost a funnel used for feeding gasoline into his vessel and began searching for it.

Somebody spotted him under the water and Willoughby volunteered to dive to find it. He was wearing normal skin diving equipment, including flippers and mask.

GOT FUNNEL

He dived down, retrieved the funnel and returned to the wharf. As he was climbing back on to the dock his hand touched the galvanized cover of a 110-volt electrical cable feeding electricity to the wharf houseboats.

Police say the three-strand conduit, hooked up to telephone wires, apparently short-circuited, resulting in an electrical shock which forced Willoughby back into the harbor. As he tumbled back, Willoughby's wife, Ruth, and a friend, William Sim, 2644 Cedar Hill Road, grabbed a rowboat and rowed out to him.

He was lying face down in the water, motionless. The two dragged him into the boat and he was pulled back on to the wharf, where they began artificial respiration.

NO RESPONSE

He did not respond and Sidney volunteer fire department similarly failed to revive him. He was taken to Resthaven Hospital, where Dr. C. H. Hemmings cut open his chest to message the heart, again without any response.

Deputy coroner Dr. J. H. Moore was arranging an inquest, to be held probably at McCall's at 10 a.m. Tuesday. Funeral service has been tentatively scheduled for 1:15 p.m. Thursday at McCall's.

DICK WILLOUGHBY
... died doing good deed

The mishap happened near the premises of Shoal Harbor Marine Co., managed by brothers Murray and Ken Stockall.

THREW SWITCH

Ken Stockall said today it was his brother who threw the switch to turn off the electricity after Willoughby was thrown back into the water by the force of the shock.

Ken Stockall said dampness seeping between the cable and the galvanized steel covering may have caused the short circuit.

Police were unable to decide whether Willoughby died by electrocution or drowning.

A former car painter at Empress Motors, Willoughby was well known in stock-car racing circles.

Saturday at Western Speedway, Langford, he won the opening heat and took second place in the main event.

He was involved in a multiple crash in the third lap of the main race when some 11 cars piled into a fence, but he escaped injury.

Flying Directly To Edmonton, Philip Carries On

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP)—The Queen today was forced to cancel her part of the Royal tour of Canada's northland. Prince Philip will carry on in her stead.

While reported feeling better, she still has not fully recovered from the stomach upset that Sunday compelled her to spend the day resting in Whitehorse while her husband fulfilled her scheduled engagements in Dawson and Mayo.

She will fly directly to Edmonton.

The announcement by press secretary Esmond Butler came at 10 a.m. YST (noon PDT) just before Prince Philip took off for Yellowknife in the four-engined Viscount aircraft that brought the Royal couple from British Columbia.

There was no indication immediately that any part of the heavy program scheduled in Edmonton Tuesday would be cancelled or curtailed.

WEARINESS

The stomach upset has been attributed officially to the Queen's general weariness and the hot weather.

Mr. Butler told the 50-odd newspaper men and photographers crowded into the airport press room.

"The Queen is better but has not fully recovered."

"In view of the heavy day the doctor has advised a direct flight to Edmonton."

"It is planned for the Queen to leave at 3:30 p.m. And she will arrive in Edmonton shortly after the Duke of Edinburgh who will be carrying out the day's program as arranged."

TO VISIT MINES

The Prince is due in Edmonton, 1,000 miles southeast of Whitehorse, at 9 p.m. MST after visits to the gold-mining centre of Yellowknife and the uranium mining town of Uranium City in northwestern Saskatchewan.

With him on the flight across the Northwest Territories were a reporter and a photographer. Others of the press party, that has accompanied the Royal couple across the country on the tour played in Whitehorse with the Queen. They will fly to Edmonton tonight.

The Queen did not appear outside the RCMP guest house at the airport, the Royal couple's weekend home, this morning.

Mr. Butler's press conference was called for 9:15 a.m. At 9:50 a.m., when the Queen was scheduled to leave for her plane, it became clear that an important announcement would be forthcoming.

CONFERENCE

It was learned that Mr. Butler was conferring with the Queen's doctor, Surgeon-Captain D. D. Steele-Perkins.

Prince Philip went directly to the royal aircraft parked on the tarmac a mile across the field from the press room in the airport library. Mr. Butler met the newspaper men and made his announcement.

New Party To Start In Nfld.?

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Premier Smallwood goes before the legislature today to ask support of a resolution condemning a federal government bill on special Newfoundland grants.

If he doesn't get the House's full support, the jaunty premier said "then obviously I will have to adopt another course of action."

That might mean he would call a general election, although his governing 31-man Liberal party's term does not expire until 1962.

The House faces another situation, a statement by two members of the four-man Conservative opposition explaining why they resigned from the provincial party. A. M. Duffy and James D. Higgins, both members of St. John's ridings, announced Saturday they were quitting the party but retaining their seat in the House.

They didn't say why, preferring to wait until the legislative sits.

One report today said Higgins and Duffy will be the first two elected members of a new provincial political party.

The new party would be known as "The Newfoundland Party," it was stated.

West Takes Lead At Geneva Talks

GENEVA (UPI)—U.S. Secretary of State Christian Herter proposed today that the Geneva deadlock over Berlin be broken by converting the present Big Four conference into a permanent commission on Germany with East and West German advisers.

Herter said such a body would have no time limit on its activities—unlike the all-German committee proposed by the Russians which would have to complete German reunification within 18 months.

The U.S. Secretary of State said the Big Four conference that setting up a permanent commission would be a "sensible and businesslike way" of breaking the East-West deadlock here.

Herter reminded the Soviets that the Big Four still remain responsible for reunifying Germany and that the West is determined to end the country's East-West division.

Russia's Andrei Gromyko rejected the Western proposal quickly in a preliminary reply that indicated he would turn it down outright later.

Herter spoke for the West as a whole when he delivered the proposal to a plenary session of the conference.

Shortly before, the U.S. Secretary had put the plan privately before Gromyko during a Big Four lunch meeting in the villa of British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

It was the first move by the West during the resumed Geneva talks to swing over to the offensive and seize the initiative from the Russians.

50 Killed in Uprising Sparked by Iraq Reds

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—Two Cairo newspapers reported today that a Communist uprising in Iraq against the government of Premier Abdel Karim Kassem in the oil city of Kirkuk was still raging and that the Communists were hanging a "large number" of opponents.

The death toll was estimated at between 50 and 100 persons. A clandestine radio calling itself the Voice of Free Iraq also reported today the fighting had spread to the city of Anah across the top of Iraq from Kirkuk and that Communists there had made "another" attempt to capture the city.

Royal Trip Cancelled

BOWANVILLE, Ont. (CP)—An outbreak of infectious hepatitis at Mrs. Bertha (Mom) Whyte's home for children apparently has cancelled her plans to take a group of children to Winnipeg for the Royal Visit.

Most of the happenings in Iraq were veiled by heavy government censorship but the government confirmed Sunday night that the Communists began an attempt on July 14 to seize control. July 14 is the first anniversary of the uprising against King Faisal.

The major fighting was reported confined to the city of Kirkuk where an army brigade there mutinied and joined the Communist rebels. Reports today said the Reds held large areas of the city and had seized an arms depot.

FAMILY OF 8 SURVIVES DESERT ORDEAL

Spoonful of Water in Blazing Sun

MOAB, Utah (AP)—Eight parched people and one pint of water, a spoonful at a time... a burning sun with only a disabled car for shade... a little salmon-egg fish bait for food... and, finally, a thirsty child's question: "Mommy, what does it feel like to die?"

That was Diane Scott, 9, trying to sleep after almost two days of hardship.

The mother, 35-year-old Laura Scott, answered:

"It would be like going to sleep. You'd just go unconscious and gradually die."

"Will I get water in heaven?"

"Yes, honey, all you want." Diane didn't die. Neither did Mrs. Scott, her husband Viri, 37, or their five other children, ages 4 to 12. A search plane spotted them Sunday, when their car had stranded them for two days in the remote Country of Standing Rocks.

They drove into the rugged,

treeless country Friday morning to see the breathtaking view from Dead Horse Point, a bluff that overlooks the Colorado River gorge about 35 miles southeast of Moab, the nearest community.

They took some wrong turns and got lost on Shafer Trail, a boulder-crowned pair of ruts suitable only for trucks or jeeps. Scott said the car's radiator burst. He drove on, thinking they were pointed toward Moab, by now more than 40 miles to the northeast. Then the crankcase oil pan ruptured and the car quit.

RATIONED WATER

"We survived by keeping cool under the dirt," Scott said after their rescue: "drinking water—about a pint from the radiator, one spoonful every 2½ hours. All we had to eat was some salmon eggs, and we tried to eat cactus but our mouths were so dry we couldn't swallow it."

Scott explained that the family buried themselves in sand up to their necks, to avoid the burning rays of the sun. Relatives in Moab reported the Scotts missing when they didn't return Friday.

Two flyers, searching for the Scotts, saw the car near an SOS sign made of rocks. They radioed Moab, then landed a few miles away to take water to the family. A pickup truck reached them later and drove them to a spot where two other planes landed. The planes flew them here.

Th' Yukon's loss is Edmonton's gain.

I hope the Duke finds them falcons just delicious.

We gotta be careful. If this heat keeps up much longer we're goin' to get a reputation as a summer resort.

The Golden Years

IT'S too hot for serious thought this afternoon, so let's have a little idle fun with Bob and Mabel Pullaway. You're sure to know them if you know this island as well as parts—I'm told—of the Fraser Valley.

Bob and Mabel came out to the Coast when he retired from his professional job. They were going to take things easily, they said, and bought themselves a little place in the country where they've been working themselves into the ground ever since.

Ruth

The place was a bit run down, you see. As Mabel says, "the people who had it before us rather let it go. But the moment we saw it we realized it had possibilities. A bit bigger than we planned, perhaps, but all his life Bob has wanted a life like this and being able to call his soul his own."

They've brought the garden back for a start. "My dear it was so wild. But when we started working we found all sorts of little treasures." They've pulled all the grass from the rockery. They've subdued the wilderness that must once have been a lawn.

They've repaired the fence between the garden and the field that an irreverent visiting son refers to as "Mom and Dad's Back 40."

If they'd stayed with the garden, they might have been alright. But, of course, they didn't. "The Back 40" got them.

The first year they sold the hay on it. But one summer evening, Bob looked at Mabel and said that what they needed was a cow and with milk and cream and the strawberries she'd talked of getting. . . . "Manure," said Mabel. "Just think of the manure and how we're always wanting manure for the garden."

So they bought a cow, a pretty Jersey, due to freshen in a week or two. Tinker Bell, they called her, and marked the day of her accouchement on the kitchen calendar. Naturally, they kept the calf. But even with the calf there was more milk than they could handle. So they bought two weaner pigs.

That was the livestock side. Bob's side, as Mabel called it in spite of the fact that she had to wash the milk pails night and morning.

The hens were Mabel's, though, for she'd always wanted a few hens of her own.

The strawberries were hers, too. So were the raspberries which started as a modest little row because they felt they should have raspberries to come on after the strawberries were done.

Bob and Mabel never get away, of course. They can't really, with the animals. And with the fruit, because "it would be a crime to go away right now with the raspberries (or the beans, or the plums) just coming on."

The poor, poor things!

But in spite of the work, they're very happy. They talk of organic farming, pure foods, wicked fertilizers, and how we'd all be so much healthier if we led a simple life.

Only now and then does the brutal truth break through.

"Are you a gentleman farmer?" the son of a visiting friend asked the other evening. "Well, I try to be a gentleman," said Bob, "and I work like hell 18 hours a day."

"The Golden Years," said Mabel drily.

Huge Expenses Involved In North Expansion Plan

Immense future wealth but plenty of headaches would be in store for British Columbia if it took over part of the Northwest Territories in exchange for maintaining the 600-mile stretch of the Alaska Highway in B.C.

This was the view of observers in Ottawa as reported today by the Canadian Press. The deal, which would make B.C. the largest province, was suggested in Ottawa by Premier Bennett to Defence Minister G. R. Pearkes.

Premier Bennett reported Saturday that Mr. Pearkes was "very interested" in the proposal and indicated he would take it up with the federal cabinet.

The area of B.C. would embrace all of the Territories north of the B.C. border and west of the 120th meridian and includes immense power and oil resources; but these are only on the eve of development and it would be many years before they would yield the province sufficient revenue to offset cost of upkeep in the area.

On the debit side of the ledger for B.C., also would be the cost of the highway, maintained largely as a defence link from Dawson City through the Yukon to Alaska.

It now costs the federal government $17,000,000 a year but if the deal were made, Mr. Bennett says, B.C. would pay the whole provincial section of it, to Trans-Canada Highway standards.

Ottawa sources point out the population is sparse in the territories and the distances between centres of population immense. The climate is another factor that increases the cost of maintaining transportation, communication, health, welfare and educational services.

The federal government pays the biggest part of the bill for these services with a share being contributed by the Northwest Territories council. British Columbia would be faced with heavy expenditures in taking over even a part of the services now maintained over the whole of the territories.

NO INCREASE IN SUPPLY OF MONEY

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bank of Canada has no thought of increasing the money supply at present, Finance Minister Fleming said in the Commons Saturday night.

He said a rise in the money supply of $137,000,000 from the 1958 peak last Oct. 1 to $133,500,000 last week was not a significant increase.

"It has been made quite clear by the Bank of Canada that it has no thought of embarking upon an increase of money supply under existing conditions," Mr. Fleming said.

He was replying to Opposition Leader Pearson, who referred to the increase, since October.

"If this money supply keeps on increasing," Mr. Pearson said, "the inevitable result, I suggest, will be inflation."

Mr. Pearson also said the government's debt position is "worrying and worsening."

HOW YOUR LIVER BILE BREAKS DOWN FAT

Laboratory tests have now proved that liver bile emulsifies fat . . . actually breaks it down. It is an established medical fact that when liver bile is added to fatty acids, the fat is broken down and forms a smooth, easy-digesting mix.

In your body, precious liver bile helps break down fat the same way. Many foods reach the digestive tract as undigested fatty acids. Your golden liver bile helps break down this fat . . . unblocks it . . . for easier and more complete digestion.

Cartier's Little Liver Pills exclusive formula of natural, vegetable ingredients relieves irregularity gently and effectively. At the same time, it actually improves the flow of liver bile needed to break down fat in your body.

So when you feel sluggish, headachy, nervous and need a laxative, get Cartier's Little Liver Pills. Remember, Cartier's not only relieves irregularity, but actually improves the flow of liver bile needed to break down fat.

Some of this Pacific air will extend into the central and eastern portions of the interior today to conflict with hot dry air in the valleys. Some clouds and even a few thunderstorms should result. By Tuesday the air should return to relatively clear and dry conditions. The southern coast will remain unaffected over the next two days.

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

Redhot Poker Easy Grower

Redhot pokers are easy to grow whether you call them by their legitimate name of kniphofia, or their old name of tritoma.

Known also as torch-lily, and poker-plant, the kniphofia is native to Africa, and adds that touch of flamboyance to a summer garden, especially where shrubs and lawns predominate.

The roots are thick and fleshy, the leaves are long and growing from a basal clump.

The flowers are borne as a terminal spike on a stout stem, and in color they may be yellow, orange to red, or combinations of these shades.

In England there are listed many named varieties, but here we have only got as far as knowing whether the plants are early, midseason, or late flowering.

Grown in one garden, a given variety may reach a height of three feet, while in another the same variety may go to six feet. Yet I still maintain kniphofias are easy to grow.

As with other plants which prefer to remain undisturbed for years, the planting site should have some time spent, on it. Dig it deeply to provide winter drainage, and incorporate rotted compost or old manure with some coarse sand added if the original soil is of clay. Add also a four-inch potful of bonemeal to a large-sized plant.

Planting may be done either in early April as growth begins, or not later than mid-September if the soil is heavy. As an accent plant against a background of lawn, and pokers will provide color and interest for years.

Seamen's Union Ranks Split by Dissension

Vancouver (CP) — A group of about 40 men is rebelling against the Seafarers International Union (Ind.), in the hope they can form a separate union that could unite with the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and Other Transport Workers.

The group was circulating pamphlets on all coast ships Friday under the title of "committee for re-organization."

A spokesman for the rebels said that by joining the CBRE "We can get back into the Canadian labor family and rid ourselves of a dictatorial outfit."

The SIU was recently expelled from the Canadian Labor Congress for alleged raiding of another union.

Meanwhile, 11 SIU members who claim they were expelled from the union for refusing to load Northland Navigation vessels during a strike which ended Thursday, are planning to prosecute the union.

They say they have not been allowed to enter the SIU hall to get employment, and have sought help from Alex MacDonald, lawyer for the B.C. Federation of Labor.

LOGGERS AT 'PLAY' ON ALL-SOOKE DAY

Fast of foot, strong of arm, cool of courage, are woodsmen who make All Sooke Day one of most spectacular outdoor events on the sports calendar. A family feud between log-birling brothers Ardiel and Jubiel Wickheim in photo. No. 1 ended with a splash for Jubiel and victory for Ardiel after a long, crowd-pleasing battle. Alan Woodrow (No. 2 photo.) proved there is no substitute for sweat and skill in the log bucking contest with handsaw; but Frank McKenzie (No. 3) used mechanical aid in the chain saw contest. Despite the "machine age" tool, strength and steady arm are needed to attain speed necessary to win prizes. All contests brought forth applause and cheers from crowd of over 10,000, but most thrilling was spar tree climb, won by perennial victor, Danny Sailor (No. 4) who made ascent and descent of 84-foot spar in 32 seconds. As usual, he dropped his hat from top of tree (tiny dot at top right) and beat it to the ground in what amounts to practically a free fall. (Times photos by Jorgen Svendsen.)

VICTORIA, B.C., MONDAY, JULY 20, 1959—PAGE 9

MONTE ROBERTS

OUR VERY OWN ISLAND DIGEST

(Writ by hand by Our Very Own correspondents)

WOBBLE HILL, V.I.—There was a great deal of excitement here last week, flags and bunting and decorations, etc., and the reeve and council running back and forth and committees being struck off right and also left. It was a time of tense anticipation, and your correspondent tried very hard to find out what was going on, it being a newspaper correspondent's job to find out what is going on at all times and to trace down rumors, etc.

One of the rumors was the flags and bunting, etc., were because of the grand re-opening of Lem's Pool Hall and Chowder Emporium, but this couldn't be true because it never opened in the first place so how could it re-open? I would go around and ask the residents what is going on but they are all out on the main street shouting and in no mood to be talked to but I will trace this excitement down as soon as it is over.

More later.

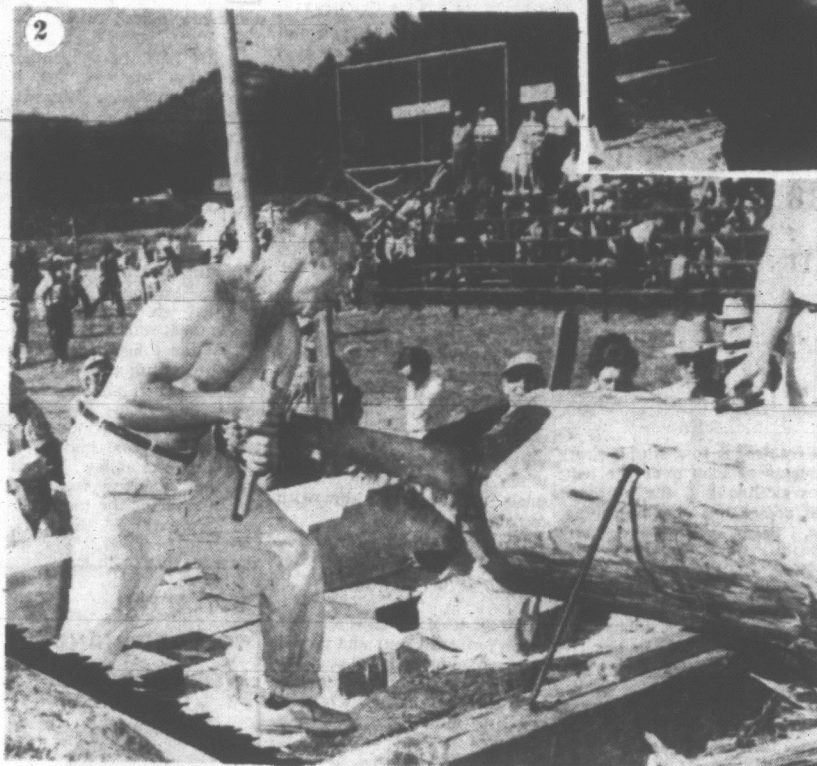

WALLOPEM BEACH, V.I.—Wallopem Beach failed to be visited by Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip, which is just as well, because nothing much was going on, this being the off-season, like.

LUNCHVILLE, V.I.—A tiny, blue-eyed, curly-haired, dimple-cheeked, button-nosed, shell-eared, short-armed, long-legged girl of "not quite five" stole the show with a radiant smile as the lovely Queen and her tanned, handsome Prince whisked by in their long black automobile. She (the tiny girl, that is,) landed an 85-pound Tye salmon, winning the Lunchville fishing derby.

GOON CENTRE, V.I.—This would have been the Westernmost point in the Royal Tour if the Royal Tour had come this far West.

However, the Chief Magistrate and Leading Citizen of Goon Centre, Mayor Abner Goon, refused to get into the spirit of the occasion and served everybody (including himself) with coffee royal at the Town Hall.

When he got home, he received a royal welcome. He is now doing as well as can be expected. (The above despatch was writ by hand by your Goon Centre Correspondent, Mrs. Abner Goon.)

RAFFLE PLANS JUSTIFIED BOOSTERS SAY

All-Sooke Day boosters maintain the community association which sponsored the event did the "right thing" in bringing in a few farm animals and house plants to obviate chance of police prosecution when they conducted a tombola raffle.

"We haven't had a fine out of it, so far. We took a chance," George Pimlott, association secretary, said today.

"And actually, we don't anticipate any reaction," Mr. Pimlott said addition of five goats, a rooster, two rabbits, house plants and a few carrots gave All-Sooke celebrations the agricultural fair status, under which such raffles are allowed.

He said RCMP probably received a directive to crack down on raffles, but it was not necessarily aimed at All-Sooke Day. Most events of the day consisted of loggers' sports.

All-Sooke Day Called Rival For Stampede

All-Sooke Day rivals the Calgary Stampede for excitement, color, and "grass roots" sports.

This is the opinion of many visitors from the U.K. and the United States among the crowd of more than 10,000 who watched the 23rd annual event Saturday.

They suggested All-Sooke Day is underplayed, and that the provincial government should assist in promoting a Highland-games type of meet to attract entries from all over the province.

"These are the grass-root sports of this province," Gerald L. Padden, Durham, England, said. "Talk about the Calgary Stampede—you don't have to be envious. This Sooke show is real Canada."

Mr. Padden, who is staying with his son Brian, 654 Gorge West, said he was amazed at the speed the loggers chopped through square timbers. The log-birling and tree-climbing contests also impressed him.

J. A. Richard of Wales was equally enthusiastic.

"I've never seen anything like this in my life," he said. "It's wonderful."

NEVER MISS IT But it was not only visitors who were thrilled by the sports. Mrs. May Kowalyk, 749 Roderick Street, who has lived 35 years in Victoria and who attended her first All-Sooke Day Saturday, said: "I will never miss this event again."

There was bright sunshine for the field sports and logging events, including the famous world championship log birling in the Sooke River. The usual traffic tie-ups were at a minimum, made possible by the construction of extra parking space across the river.

The hot weather did not curb the appetite of patrons. They consumed more than 500 pounds of prime barbecued beef and 2,000 pounds of barbecued spring salmon.

SPARKS IN THE AIR—A quarrel, opened the loggers' festival which started with sports for children.

Nine-month-old Frederick Harry Coultas, was chosen as the best baby in the All-Sooke Day show and the winner of the Victoria Daily Times Trophy. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Coultas 3066 Tillamook Road, Saanich.

SOOKE BABY The best Sooke baby was Kenneth Charles Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Hill. Best baby six months and under was Janet Elaine Raymond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Raymond, 3318 Aloha Road.

Dr. Derek French of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, was given the happy chore of selecting the winners among 50 babies who entered the contest.

One of the most spectacular sporting events was a battle royal between two world champion birlers, Sooke brothers Ardiel and Jubiel Wickheim, for the Vancouver Island log birling championship.

Ardiel, who is the present world champion, won the bout against his brother, a former champ, but only after a tough and long fight. Jubiel was suffering from a handicap. His foot was injured when he assisted in putting out a fire at the Saseenos Elementary School last Thursday.

The two brothers hopped and jumped like ballet dancers along the 13-foot log, sometimes sending it spinning at a breakneck speed. The favorite tricks of splashing water in each other's eyes or making the log bounce end-to-end thrilled the large crowd.

John Wickheim, a nephew from Washington, placed third in the contest.

In the standing tree climbing contest, one of the main events of the celebrations, famed climber Danny Sailor placed first.

The short, stocky logger climbed and descended the 84-foot pole in 32 seconds, to the amazement of spectators. It was a breath-taking climb, carried out without a slip or pause.

DANCED JIG Later Danny entertained patrons by dancing a jig on top of the pole and standing on his head. And just to show that he could come down a tree in record time, he threw his hat off at the top of the tree, and beat it to the ground.

Ronnie Pappenger, 21, of Salt Spring Island, and Gordon Eve, 20, placed second and third respectively in the contest.

In the novice class, a 27-year-old logger, Don Vaux of Duncan, surprised sports officials by climbing the tree in 4 seconds. It was the first time he had ever entered a contest and his time was as good as the experienced loggers.

WINNERS Other winners in the day's events were as follows: square timber—1. Hugh McKenzie; 2. Alan Woodrow; 3. Maywell Wickheim.

Tree Chopping—1. Smokey Stoltz; 2. Hugh McKenzie; 3. Mardus Michelson.

Ladies nail-driving contest—1. Mrs. A. Fleming; 2. Mrs. E. L. Turner.

Log rolling—1. Jock Smith; 2. Bill Grunow; 3. Harry Helgensen.

Power saw bucking—1. Fraser McKenzie; 2. Ed Robinson; 3. Gerhart Hansen.

Log bucking—1. Alan Woodrow; 2. Hugh McKenzie; 3. John Martin.

In the men's half-mile challenge trophy event, winners were Blaine Tringham, John Cliff and Don Chapman, all of Victoria.

Winners in the ladies' novelty race were Jo-Ann Jones, Langford, Pat Shields and Ann Waterman, both of Victoria.

Fishing Strike Appears Certain

Last Minute Talks Fail

A last-minute attempt by the Fisheries Association of British Columbia to avert a tie-up of British Columbia's $98,000,000-a-year fishing industry has failed.

James Sinclair, president of the association, said in Vancouver today officials of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.) flatly rejected the latest proposal.

The association offered a 3 per cent increase each year in a two-year agreement, a company pension plan and other fringe benefits, Mr. Sinclair said.

UNION FIRM

"But the union would not budge and it looks like there will be a strike next weekend."

Government-supervised strike vote will be held among 5,000 shoreworkers Friday. The workers have threatened strike action to back up demands for a 20 per cent increase in the basic rate which ranges from $1.32 to $1.67 hourly.

In companion disputes 650 tenders, who work aboard packers that transport fish to canneries from boats, are seeking a 1/4-cent-a-pound bonus on all fish carried and about 5,000 salmon seiners seek an increase of between 3 1/2 to 8 cents a pound depending on the variety of salmon. Both groups are scheduled to walk out Saturday.

Mr. Sinclair said the association offer was 50 per cent better than a majority conciliation board report which recommended shoreworkers receive a 2 per cent increase each year.

A strike would hit the province's second largest industry during its peak salmon period—between July 27-August 10.

Meanwhile, threat of a strike in neighboring Washington state has been averted with the signing of a new agreement.

KIWANIS MEET TO DISCUSS VILLAGE HOUSING EXPANSION

Directors of Kiwanis Village Society meet tonight to plan an expansion of the senior citizens' housing development.

The society has offered $3,000 as a nominal payment for 14 city-owned lots adjacent to the $350,000 project now totalling 50 housing units.

The society also has asked the city to close McNair Street, which the lots span, and turn it over in the same deal.

Kiwanis president Reginald Harris said tonight's meeting would decide the extent and timing for the proposed expansion.

FORTUNE AT STAKE

Court Ruling Soon On John Hart Will

A decision is expected soon on a Canada Trust application heard in Victoria before Supreme Court judge A. D. Macfarlane for a legal interpretation of a section of the will of former B.C. Premier John Hart.

The outcome will decide whether the bulk of Mr. Hart's $361,000 estate will go to a number of nephews and nieces in Ireland and the U.S., or to his long-time secretary and companion of Mrs. Hart, Miss Ruth Marie Norton, of Victoria.

When Mr. Hart died in April, 1957, he left his home furniture, lands, car, jewellery and other personal possessions to the widow, Harriet. She was also to get the interest on the invested $361,000 capital. He stipulated in his will (section F) that "Upon my wife's death I direct my trustees to distribute the residue of my estate in the same manner as it would be distributed had I died intestate."

CLAUDE AT ISSUE

This is the section before the court. Mr. Hart died May 31, 1958, leaving the property she inherited from her husband to Miss Norton.

What the executors of Mr. Hart's will, Canada Trust, want to know from Mr. Justice Macfarlane is: Is Miss Norton entitled to receive the capital of Mr. Hart's estate, or should it go to the six distant nephews and nieces?

Had Mr. Hart died intestate (without making a will) his estate presumably would have passed to Mrs. Hart and then, after her death, automatically to his surviving relatives, the six nephews and nieces.

However, because of the vested interest in the estate, the executors want to know whether Miss Norton is entitled to benefit.

D. M. Gordon (Crease & Co.) represents Canada Trust, W. H. M. Haldane for Miss Norton and E. C. McIntyre for the next-of-kin.

The next-of-kin, the six nephews and nieces, are listed as Daniel John McBrady, of San Francisco; Joseph Michael McBrady, of Seattle; Francis and Rosetta Canning, and Catherine Callan and Bridget Reynolds, of Elre.

Mrs. Hart, an invalid in her later years, received $35,413 from the estate in the year between her husband's and her own death, along with some $14,000 out of the capital for nursing and medical expenses.

Oil Boom Predicted For Canada

REGINA (CP) — The possibility of an oil boom for western Canada was predicted Friday by Carl O. Nickle, of Calgary, in an address to the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association.

Mr. Nickle, publisher of the Daily Oil Bulletin, said the boom will come if proposed major gas projects are approved by the U.S. and Canadian governments and if Canadian import quotas are put on oil.

Mr. Nickle envisioned a 10-fold growth in the oil and gas industry in western Canada by 1980. This would provide Canada with a net export surplus in oil and gas of more than $1,000,000,000 a year, compared with a current deficit in these products of more than $300,000,000 a year, Mr. Nickle said.

Dealing with gas, Mr. Nickle said if the Canadian and U.S. governments approve major gas export projects now seeking approval, a half billion dollar investment program will be launched in the west.

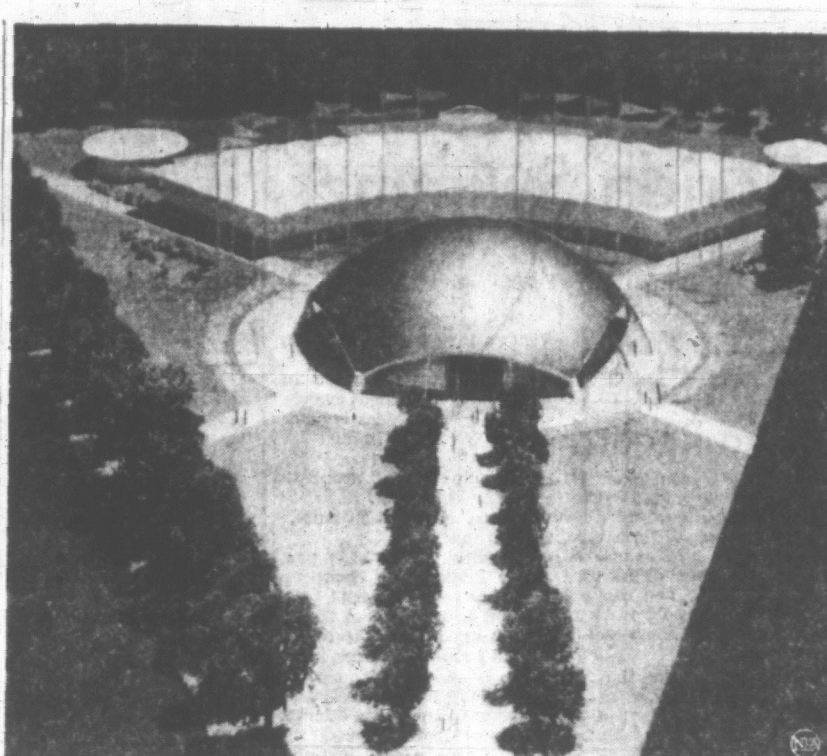

"That much will be spent in Canada on the current projects alone within a four-year period."

NEW JOBS
This would stimulate the hard-pressed oil industry, the budding petrochemical and steel industries, and other supply industries.

"Directly and indirectly, gas will create literally tens of thousands of new jobs across the nation," Mr. Nickle said.

The jam that has piled up an investment of nearly a quarter of a billion dollars in shut-in gas resources has begun to break, Mr. Nickle said. Signs of this were the linking of the Peace River, northwest Alberta and northeast British Columbia to the Pacific Coast and southern Alberta pipeline links to eastern Canadian markets.

Mr. Nickle expected this would hasten action on three projects—a major branch of the trans-Canada system into the U.S. midwest and two projects to deliver gas to northern California and the U.S. northwest by a pipeline through western Alberta.

U.S. EXHIBITION IN MOSCOW — Model shows buildings and landscaping for U.S. national exhibit now on view in Moscow. The show in the city's Sokolniki Park will run for six weeks. In foreground is science building, housed under huge aluminum dome.

AMBITIONS NOT POLITICAL

Thomson 'No Beaverbrook'

LONDON (CP) — Publisher Roy Thomson, central figure in one of Fleet Street's biggest newspaper deals, has promised to refrain from trying to achieve political ends with his newspapers.

The Canadian-born publisher, who now owns the controlling interests in some 30 papers covering four countries, said he doesn't intend to be a second Lord Beaverbrook politically speaking.

"In that respect Max (Lord Beaverbrook) and I have different ambitions," Thomson said in a commercial television news program.

Thursday directors of the Kemsley newspaper group announced they had accepted Thomson's offer of $11,250,000 ($31,500,000) for the chain. Under the terms of the deal, Thomson's Kemsley and his family will get 45 ($14) for each share. Other shareholders will be able to sell for 44 ($12.60) a share. Ordinary shares, which have doubled in price in the last 10

TODAY'S GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Flax prices scored fair advances amid considerable activity today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Other trading was dull.

Flax buying was attributed to international and export accounts. However, there were no immediate reports of export business.

Oats and barley trade was chiefly of a domestic shipping nature. There was no feature to the rye market.

Some buying in all grains was attributed to disappointment with showers on the prairie grain belt, which left some dry areas unimproved.

No information was available on overnight export loadings of Canadian wheat.

CHICAGO (AP) — After slipping as much as a cent or more a bushel in early dealings, soybean futures ran into a broad active demand today and spurred well ahead.

Active mill and export buying gave what is biggest boost in more than two weeks with gains of about a cent on all contracts.

Corn was weak. Losses there knocked a cent or more off the nearby deliveries most of the time.

Prices Dip in Retreat

Markets showed signs of slipping today, with Wall Street's slight retreat reflected at Toronto, where early industrial gains vanished as the trend turned to mixed.

Steels and motors led the "modest" New York retreat, while base metals and oils dipped at Toronto.

AT NEW YORK key shares, continuing last week's decline touched off by the steel strike, fell fractions to about a point.

Inland Steel paced the decline by sagging about two points. U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Jones and Laughlin, Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Republic Steel also dropped close to a point. Ford slumped more than a point.

Among the Canadians, Distillers Seagrams and Dome Mines lost 1/4 each. Canadian Pacific and Hudson's Bay mining 1/4 each, and Aluminum Ltd. 1/2. International Nickel rose 1/4. McIntyre Porcupine 1/4 and Walker Gooderham 1/2.

The 2 p.m. volume was 1,386,000 shares, compared with Friday's 1,089,000 at the same hour.

A sudden drop by Arcan Corp. was the feature of the industrial list which lost most of a half-point gain. Arcan opened at 7 1/2, down 1/2. Shortly before noon the wholesale firm was hit by a wave of selling that dropped it to $1.75. It recovered to $2.85, off $4.40 on a turnover of 137,000 shares. Brokers were at a loss to explain the sudden drop, but said stop-loss orders to sell when a stock reaches a certain price, played a big part.

Senior base metals were mixed but uranium was easier. Seniors were down in western oils.

AT VANCOUVER the market was quiet, showing little price change during the forenoon.

Pacific Nickel moved 12,500 at 65. Silver Standard traded 7,000 at 45. Canadian Collieries sold 4,600 at $9. Giant Masco moved 1,000 at 24.

AT MONTREAL prices showed a weaker tendency under modest trading early this afternoon, with a few losses extending to a point or more.

Papers were down. Powell

Freak Mishap Kills City Skindiver

A Victoria skindiver and stock-car driver was killed in a freak accident at Sidney Sunday when he was knocked into Shoal Harbor by a shock from an electric cable running along the wharf.

Dead as a result of doing a good deed is Dick Willoughby, 27, of 1837 Crescent.

According to Sidney RCMP, Willoughby and some friends were planning to go skindiving Sunday morning. They prepared a boat at Shoal Harbor and were about to leave when Tony Johnson, who owns a houseboat tied up to the wharf, found he had lost a funnel used for feeding gasoline into his vessel and began searching for it.

Somebody spotted it under the water and Willoughby volunteered to dive to get it. He was wearing normal skindiving equipment, including flippers and mask.

GOT FUNNEL

He dived down, retrieved the funnel and returned it to the wharf. As he was climbing back on to the dock his hand touched the galvanized cover of a 110-volt electrical cable feeding electricity to the wharf houseboats.

Police say the three-strand conduit, hooked up to telephone wires, apparently short-circuited, resulting in an electrical shock which forced Willoughby back into the harbor. As he tumbled back, Willoughby's wife, Ruth, and a friend, William Sim, 2644 Cedar Hill Road, grabbed a rowboat and rowed out to him. He was lying face down in the water, motionless. The two dragged him into the boat and he was pulled back on the wharf, where they began artificial respiration.

NO RESPONSE

He did not respond and Sidney volunteer fire department similarly failed to revive him. He was taken to Resthaven Hospital, where Dr. C. H. Hemmings cut open his chest to massage the heart, again without any response.

Deputy coroner Dr. J. H. Moore was arranging an inquest to be held probably at McCall's at 10 a.m. Tuesday. Funeral service has been tentatively scheduled for 1.15 p.m. Thursday at McCall's.

DICK WILLOUGHBY
... dies doing good deed

The mishap happened near the premises of Shoal Harbor Marine Co., managed by brothers Murray and Ken Stockall.

THREW SWITCH

Ken Stockall said today it was his brother who threw the switch to turn off the electricity, after Willoughby was thrown back into the water by the force of the shock.

Ken Stockall said dampness seeping between the cable and the galvanized steel covering may have caused the short-circuit.

Police were unable to decide whether Willoughby died by electrocution or drowning. A former car painter at Empress Motors, Willoughby was well known in stock-car racing circles.

Saturday at Western Speedway, Langford, he won the opening heat and took second place in the main event.

He was involved in a multiple crash in the third lap of the main race when some 11 cars piled into a fence, but he escaped injury.

QUEEN FEELS BETTER BUT NORTH TOUR CUT

More Scorching Weather, Forest Danger Increases

It will be a scorcher for at least several more days, the weatherman predicted today.

A forest closure in Vancouver Forest District, which includes Vancouver Island, also is looming.

Clear, hot weather will "carry on for several days yet as far as I can see at the moment," meteorologist William Mackie said. "There's no change in sight."

That means temperatures in the 70s by the sea shore ranging up to 85 degrees in the city and all inland points.

SOME RELIEF

Light sea breezes will bring some relief in the afternoons and evenings. Weak weather disturbances will cool interior points of the province with some rain, after passing up the coast without a drop. Last rain fell in Victoria July 5.

Beaches were jammed with young and old and forests were drying—and burning up—over the hot weekend.

Maximum temperatures Saturday and Sunday recorded at the seaside Gonzales Hill weather station were 76 and 74 respectively but ran 10 to 15 degrees higher elsewhere.

HIGH HAZARD

Neither was a record but the dry heat reminded everyone of last year's record summer heatwave as the pattern began repeating.

High hazard conditions prevail in the woods and 12 new fires devoured timber stands in the district over the weekend.

Worst fire in the district this year, on the 2,000-foot level at Mt. Brenton, "will be contained" if winds stay down, forest officials said today.

Already more than 70 acres have been destroyed, which included 250,000 board feet of felled and bucked timber.

Seventy-five men are on the fire line, three caterpillar tractors, two tank trucks and two aerial water bombers standing by.

MEADE FIRE

A seven-acre blaze attended by 60 forest service men at Meade Creek near Cowichan Lake "is being held" at present. The blaze is at the 2,500-foot level.

On Salt Spring Island three outbreaks, caused by campers or smokers, were put out. Near Nanaimo outbreaks at two places were extinguished.

At Toba Inlet on the mainland, more than 20 men are battling a blaze of unknown size.

"The manpower situation is serious here," the service reported.

At Jervis Inlet, 20 men are fighting a three-acre blaze.

There was a "slight moisture recovery" over the area Sunday night, but insufficient to cut back on the chance of forest closure.

In effect this would not be as drastic as it appears as coast IWA members are on strike and are quickly available for firefighting.

B.C. Girl Drowned

(See page 23)

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's weekend accidental death toll climbed to 10 early today with the reported drowning of a four-year-old girl near Cranbrook. The victim was Judith Cunningham. She fell into the Bull River while camping with her parents.

New Party To Start In Nfld.?

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Premier Smallwood goes before the legislature today to ask support of a resolution condemning a federal government bill on special Newfoundland grants.

If he doesn't get the House's full support, the jaunty premier said "then obviously I will have to adopt another course of action."

That might mean he would call a general election, although his governing 31-man Liberal party's term doesn't expire until 1962.

The House faces another situation, a statement by two members of the four-man Conservative opposition explaining why they resigned from the provincial party. A. M. Duffy and James D. Higgins, both members of St. John's ridings, announced Saturday they were quitting the party but retaining their seat in the House.

They didn't say why, preferring to wait until the legislative sits.

One report today said Higgins and Duffy will be the first two elected members of a new provincial political party.

The new party would be known as "The Newfoundland Party," it was stated.

West Takes Lead At Geneva Talks

GENEVA (UPI)—U.S. Secretary of State Christian Herter proposed today that the Geneva deadlock over Berlin be broken by converting the present Big Four conference into a permanent commission on Germany with East and West German advisers.

Herter said such a body would have no time limit on its activities—unlike the all-German committee proposed by the Russians which would have to complete German reunification within 18 months.

The U.S. Secretary of State told the Big Four conference that setting up a permanent commission would be a "sensible and businesslike way" of breaking the East-West deadlock here.

Herter reminded the Soviets that the Big Four still remain responsible for reunifying Germany and that the West is determined to end the country's East-West division.

Russia's Andrei Gromyko rejected the Western proposal quickly in a preliminary reply that indicated he would turn it down outright later.

Herter spoke for the West as a whole when he delivered the proposal to a plenary session of the conference.

Shortly before, the U.S. Secretary had put the plan privately before Gromyko during a Big Four lunch meeting in the villa of British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

Philip Makes Visit Alone

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP)—The Queen today was forced to cancel her part of the Royal tour of Canada's northland. Prince Philip will carry on in her stead.

While reported feeling better, she still has not fully recovered from the stomach upset that Sunday compelled her to spend the day resting in Whitehorse while her husband fulfilled her scheduled engagements in Dawson and in Mayo.

She will fly directly to Edmonton.

The announcement by press secretary Esmond Butler came at 10 a.m. YST (noon PDT) just before Prince Philip took off for Yellowknife in the four-engined Viscount aircraft that brought the Royal couple from British Columbia.

There was no indication immediately that any part of the heavy program scheduled in Edmonton Tuesday would be cancelled or curtailed.

The stomach upset has been attributed officially to the Queen's general weariness and the hot weather.

Mr. Butler told the 50-odd newspaper men and photographers crowded into the airport press room:

"The Queen is better but has not fully recovered."

"In view of the heavy day the doctor has advised a direct flight to Edmonton."

"It is planned for the Queen to leave at 3.30 p.m. and she will arrive in Edmonton shortly after the Duke of Edinburgh who will be carrying out the day's program as arranged."

TO VISIT MINES

The Prince is due in Edmonton, 1,000 miles southeast of Whitehorse, at 9 p.m. MST after visits to the gold-mining centre of Yellowknife and the uranium mining town of Uranium City in northwestern Saskatchewan.

No reporters or photographers were with Prince Philip. Members of the press party that has accompanied the Royal couple across the country remained in Whitehorse. They will fly to Edmonton tonight.

The Queen did not appear outside the RCAF guest house at the airport, the Royal couple's weekend home, this morning.

Mr. Butler's press conference was called for 9.15 a.m. At 9.50 a.m., when the Queen was scheduled to leave for her plane, it became clear that an important announcement would be forthcoming.

CONFERENCE

It was learned that Mr. Butler was conferring with the Queen's doctor, Surgeon-Captain D. D. Steele-Perkins.

Prince Philip went directly to the royal aircraft parked on the tarmac a mile across the field from the press room in the airport library. Mr. Butler met the newspaper men and made his announcement. Continued on Page 22

8 Survive 'Sun Hell' In Desert

MOAB, Utah (AP)—Eight parched people and one pint of water, a spoonful at a time ... a burning sun with only a disabled car for shade ... a little salmon-egg fish bait for food ... and, finally, a thirsty child's question:

"Mommy, what does it feel like to die?"

That was Diane Scott, 9, trying to sleep after almost two days of hardship.

The mother, 35-year-old Laura Scott, answered:

"It would be like going to sleep. You'd just go unconscious and gradually die."

"Will I get water in heaven?"

"Yes, honey, all you want." Diane didn't die. Neither did Mrs. Scott, her husband Virgil, 37, or their five other children, ages 4 to 12. A search plane spotted them Sunday, when their car had stranded them for two days in the remote Country of Standing Rocks.

50 Killed As Red Revolt Sweeps Iraq

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—Two Cairo newspapers reported today that a Communist uprising in Iraq against the government of Premier Abdel Karim Kassem in the oil city of Kirkuk was still raging and that the Communists were hanging a "large number" of officials there.

The death toll was estimated at between 50 and 100 persons. A clandestine radio, calling itself the Voice of Free Iraq also reported today the fighting had spread to the city of Anah across the top of Iraq from Kirkuk and that Communists there had made "another" attempt to capture the city.

Most of the happenings in Iraq were veiled by heavy government censorship but the government confirmed Sunday night that the Communists began an attempt on July 14 to seize control. July 14 is the first anniversary of the uprising against King Faisal.

The major fighting was reported confined to the city of Kirkuk where an army brigade there mutinied and joined the Communist rebels. Reports today, said the Reds held large areas of the city and had seized an arms depot.

Boy Slashed By Leopard At Circus

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP)—A half-grown leopard clawed a seven-year-old Richland boy at the Cole Brothers' circus here Saturday.

Richland police said Kenneth Baird crawled under a rope into a prohibited area and lifted a corner of the sliding door of the leopard's cage.

As the boy was peering in, the animal lashed out and clawed him in the face. He was taken to a Richland hospital, where he was bandaged up but in good condition Saturday night.

'Make Her Go Home' Plea By Indignant Reporters

TORONTO (UPI)—The Toronto Star said today British reporters are pleading with British authorities to call off Queen Elizabeth's six-week Canadian tour and make her go home.

The newspaper's London correspondent, William H. Stoneman, said British reporters accompanying the Queen on her tour are becoming "increasingly indignant at the killing program she has been forced to follow."

Stoneman said Peter Moorhead of the London Daily Herald wound up his account of the tour after Sunday's cancellation of the Queen's program with a plea to "make her go home."

"The Queen is ill," Moorhead wrote, "twenty-nine hot, hectic days and a slogging 10,000-mile coast-to-coast tour have brought her almost to exhaustion. I am no doctor but I suggest that the Queen is heading for a complete breakdown if the tour continues at its present murderous pace."

The Star said the British Broadcasting Corporation's special correspondent pointed out that today's program alone included a 1,600-mile air jour-
